5000 Families Driven From Homes As Floods Spread

EIGHT MORE ST. FRANCIS LEVEES OUT

Red Cross Relief Units in Missouri and Arkansas Care for Homeless Ones

FARMS UNDER WATER

Difficulty Encountered by Troops in Evacuating Many Trapped Families

(By United Press)

FLOOD MENACE on the St. Francis river in southeast Missouri and northeast Arkansas spread southward today, with cracking of eight additional levees at Piggott, Ark., inundating an estimated 20,000 additional acres of rich farmlands.

To the north, at Kennett, Mo., the river level shrank slightly, and national guard troops patrolling the levees believed they could hold against the pressure and save a flood danger at Horners, Mo.

Red Cross relief units cared for thousands of refugees in the area, housing them in tents and private homes and feeding them at emergency stations.

"Five levees broke near Cantwell, Mo., and three near Piggott, Ark., today, raising the total number of washed out embankments to 14.

Approximately 5000 persons, mostly farm families, have been driven from their homes and about 50,000 acres of rich delta lands have been flooded, it was estimated.

Major C. O. Raine, in charge of national guard troops at Kennett, reported that conditions there were well in hand, with practically all marooned families evacuated and with patrols out today checking to make sure none had been overlooked.

"We have some 500 men on Levee No. 4 north of Kennett, and on the upper end of Levee No. 25," he told the United Press. "Pressure on No. 25 is great, but if we can save it, we will prevent flooding of Horners. If the levee goes out, as much territory will be flooded there as at Kennett."

The inundated area at Kennett, roughly, is 25 miles long, six miles wide at the north end, 20 miles wide at the south end.

Considerable difficulty was encountered by the troops yesterday in evacuating trapped families, who were reluctant to leave their homes.

"We were forced at times to be emphatic in our orders to families to leave their homes," Major Raine said. "They didn't realize the danger, for the water was higher than it had ever been before."

Authorities at Piggott, however, were more fortunate. Break of the levees there occurred after practically all affected inhabitants had been evacuated, and had left. There was no immediate danger to life. Piggott itself was not endangered, nor was Kennett.

DUST STORM HITS NORTH TEXAS BELT

DALLAS, Tex., March 16.—(UP)—The worst dust storm of the year swept north Texas today.

Carried by a 30-mile an hour wind, the storm struck Fort Worth at 11 a. m. and 30 minutes later descended upon Dallas.

Visibility was impaired. Airplane traffic was at a standstill. Automobile driving was a hazardous undertaking.

Weather bureau reports indicated the storm extended from Big Spring in west Texas to Dallas and was moving eastward rapidly.

QUEEN OPERATED ON

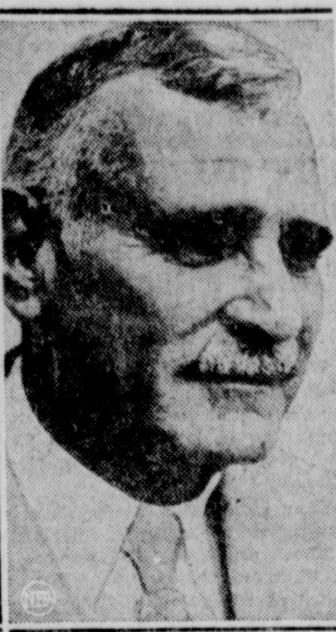

STOCKHOLM, March 16.—(UP)—Queen Alexandrine of Denmark, 55, visiting here on the occasion of the betrothal of her son, Crown Prince Frederik to Princess Ingrid of Sweden, was stricken with appendicitis today and an emergency operation was performed.

It was understood she was suffering also from intestinal strangulation.

The queen arrived yesterday with Frederik, coincident with the announcement of the Crown Prince's engagement to pretty, accomplished Princess Ingrid, daughter of Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden.

INCREASED TAX ON LIQUORS IN STATE SOUGHT

Boost in License Fees Also Will Be Recommended to Legislature

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 16.—(UP)—Increased liquor taxes and license fees probably will be recommended to the state legislature as a result of hearings conducted by a special senate committee appointed to investigate the California liquor situation.

The committee, concluding its hearings today, heard complaints of beer and wine interests that taxes already were too high. Despite that, in the opinion of Senator A. L. Pierovich, chairman, the committee was expected to recommend a higher tax and increased license fees, for revenue purposes.

"This will, without doubt, restrict the number of liquor dealers," he said. "There may be a recommendation for splitting the license fee revenue with cities for use in local enforcement. This point, however, remains uncertain."

"I doubt if we will recommend any relinquishment of state regulation in favor of local option and control."

Brewers and vintners who attended the hearing at the capitol expressed the general feeling that low taxes on beer and wine would promote greater temperance by making the beverages available at lower prices. Neither interest raised a serious objection to continuation of the present tax of two cents a gallon.

Approximately 40 per cent of the gross receipts of breweries went into taxes last year, according to two witnesses. In addition, manufacturing costs have increased as a result of higher wages and material prices.

Joseph Goldie, chairman of the board of the Ranier Brewing Co., said he favored higher licenses as a means of reducing the number of brewers. No more than six of the 33 brewers in California are solvent, he said.

Edmund A. Rossi, San Francisco, representing the Italian Swiss Colony, told the committee it would be better to have no tax on wine and thus help promote "a great California industry," but he said:

"Secretary Howe passed a quiet and restful night. His condition is slightly improved over yesterday."

It was indicated at the White House today in connection with the Howe illness that plans for Mr. Roosevelt's forthcoming Florida trip hinged largely on his aide's condition.

CONDITION OF HOWE REPORTED IMPROVED

WASHINGTON, March 16.—(UP)—Col. Louis McHenry Howe, White House senior secretary who is seriously ill, was reported improved today by Dr. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician.

A bulletin issued by Dr. McIntire said:

"Secretary Howe passed a quiet and restful night. His condition is slightly improved over yesterday."

MARCH BUILDING SETS NEW HIGH MARK FOR CITY

Permit for $288,965 Taken Out by School Board Boosts Total

WITH THE issuance yesterday of a building permit for $288,965 for the new administration building at the high school, building totals for March soared to $319,017, the highest for this month in the history of Santa Ana and nearly as much as the combined totals for the entire year of 1934.

Building Inspector S. I. Prohle reported that the highest previous total for March was in 1933, when earthquake repairs boosted the figure to $165,994. With half the month still remaining, it is believed that the monthly valuation will top the entire 1934 total of $254,124. March totals to date are already more than 14 times more than for the entire month in 1934.

The total for the year 1935 to date is now $437,704, the highest figure since 1930, when prosperity building boosted the total to $431,224. With the exception of 1930 and 1929, it is believed that the 1935 valuation for January, February and March is highest in the history of Santa Ana.

A comparison of totals for March building in recent years, with the 1935 figure representing only the first half of the month, is shown by the following totals: 1935, $319,017; 1934, $22,233; 1933, $165,994; 1932, $29,215; 1931, $107,585; 1930, $157,605; 1929, $119,725; 1928, $161,200; 1927, $123,750; 1926, $139,807; and 1925, $134,837.

The high school permit was taken out for the Santa Ana board of education by Therman Means and Bill and Homer, combined contractors for the job. The building is designated as Block A of the new campus reconstruction program, and will be two stories in height, 155 feet wide and 325 feet long. Allison and Allison are the architects for the building.

Among other permits issued yesterday was one for the erection of a building at 1112 Louise street, which is the fifth house permit to be issued this month. Contractor Jasper Farney, 313 Bush street, is listed as owner and builder of the one-story house, which will cost $4000.

DOWAGER QUEEN OF BELGIUM WEAKER

BRUSSELS, March 16.—(UP)—Dowager Queen Elisabeth, unable after 15 months to reconcile herself to the tragic death of her beloved husband King Albert, is dangerously ill, it was revealed today.

An official statement said that her health was arousing great anxiety. She is forced to remain in bed all the time. She sleeps peacefully day and night, it was said, waking occasionally to take nourishment and then falling asleep again.

Since Albert's death in a fall down a mountain side near Namur, where alone he was indulging in his favorite sport of climbing, the queen mother has remained sequestered at Laeken palace except for a voyage to Italy in September, 1934, to be with her daughter, Crown Princess Marie Jose, who gave birth to Princess Maria Pia. She is 58.

CHINESE WOMAN IS TURNING INTO MAN

SHANGHAI, March 16.—(UP)—Physicians and scientists today were reported to be conducting a secret investigation of a strange case in which Yeo Ching-Ping, 24, born a female, turned gradually into a man.

Although the asserted transformation was confirmed by General Li-Du, one of the heroes of China's resistance to Japan's seizure of Manchuria, medical men maintained utmost secrecy. Yeo Ching-Ping's father served as an officer under General Li-Du.

Yeo Ching-Ping was kept in hiding in an effort to escape publicity. It was reported that the transformation was gradual until the last stages, when the subject suddenly turned male during a thunderstorm. This strange coincidence led superstitious persons to declare the transformation was an act of the gods.

SENATE VOTES NEXT WEEK ON ROOSEVELT WORK RELIEF BILL

Prevailing Wage Fight Out Of Way

Senate Recesses After It Disposes of All Minor Changes Today

WASHINGTON, March 16.—(UP)—The $4,880,000,000 work relief bill was thrown open to general amendments today after the senate, in less than two hours, disposed of all minor changes proposed by Democratic leaders in charge of the measure.

The way was cleared for consideration on Monday of efforts to reduce the appropriation to $1,880,000,000 or $2,880,000,000.

Due to small attendance a recess until Monday was forced at 1:30 p. m.

Without a record vote, the senate approved an amendment by Sen. Carter Glass, D. Va., in charge of the bill, to continue the federal emergency relief act in operation until June 30, 1935.

Another proposal by Glass to continue activities of the public works administration until June 30, 1937, was made the first order of business when the senate convened on Monday.

The senate eliminated an amendment sought by the Master Plumbers' association, which would have required the letting of contracts on all mechanical sanitary work in building construction work or projects.

The amendment was rejected without a record vote.

The senate approved a committee amendment stating a policy to take advantage of private enterprise wherever practicable.

Another committee amendment, citing a $2000 fine or a year's imprisonment as penalties for fraudulent use of any part of the appropriations, was accepted.

It was the first Saturday session of the current session and reflected confidence of leaders that President Roosevelt's smashing victory yesterday on the bitterly debated "prevailing wage" amendment presaged a break in the New Deal legislative jam.

2000 ROUNDED UP IN DRIVE ON CRIME

WASHINGTON, March 16.—(UP)—A 24-hour descent on unwanted world hideaways netted 2070 prisoners, treasury officials reported today as 12,000 agents hammered away at illicit liquor, narcotics, smuggling and counterfeiting activities.

Early reports on night raids showed the secret service made five more arrests, the narcotics bureau 50, and the alcohol tax unit 196, new arrests.

The latest figures showed the secret service with a total of 55 arrests on counterfeiting charges, narcotics agents 508 and the alcohol tax unit 1175.

Treasury officials were awaiting reports from executives of the customs bureau and the coast guard. Scores more of arrests are expected today and tomorrow. Conservative predictions were that the total roundup will reach 3000.

AMELIA EARHART TO TRY FOR NEW MARK

NEW YORK, March 16.—(UP)—Amelia Earhart today accepted the invitation of the Mexican government to make a non-stop flight either from New York or Los Angeles to Mexico City. The flight will not involve a record attempt.

Using her Lockheed-Vega monoplane, "the only one I've got," Miss Earhart will take off some time in late April or early May, and head for Puerto Aereo Central, Mexico City's airport, 3000 feet high and surrounded by mountains.

It was understood elaborate preparations are contemplated for Miss Earhart's entertainment in Mexico, including honors to be bestowed by the Mexico Society of Geography.

FIVE AND TEN HEIRESS WILL SEEK DIVORCE

Barbara Hutton Instructs Attorney to Sue Prince Mdivani in Reno

LONDON, March 16.—(UP)—Princess Mdivani, the former Barbara Hutton, five-and-ten heiress, today instructed her New York attorney to take preliminary steps to apply for a divorce at Reno, Nev.

The New York attorney is Millard Tuckman.

Princess Barbara herself revealed her decision to the United Press in an interview in her suite at the Dorchester hotel.

"Alice and I have definitely agreed to part," the heiress, poetess and society beauty, said.

"But we agreed to part only legally," she continued. "I mean that as a result of this decision we are today greater friends than ever and intend always to remain so."

"The fact is we have the greatest mutual affection and respect."

"We always did have even if we may have occasionally disagreed as most people must at some time or other in their lives."

"Although we always were and are and will be the greatest and most sincere friends, we are not suited to live with one another."

The princess warmly praised her husband.

"Alice to me is one of the finest men I ever have known," she added. "He always said the only object of his life was to see me happy. He promised that if for some reason I was not happy with him, all I had to do was say so and he would immediately give me my freedom."

"In my opinion no man could be nobler."

Before the ceremony in Paris, June 20, 1933, Princess Barbara told interviewers that the dashing prince won her heart because, unlike American business men, he had the leisure to devote himself to his wife.

But afterwards the prince applied himself to sport with such concentration that his wife confided to friends that she was "a polo widow." Nevertheless, she

LAUREL AND HARDY TEAM IS BROKEN UP

HOLLYWOOD, March 16.—(UP)—Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, long teamed in film comedies, today were parted because they could not agree on stories for their pictures.

Producer Hal Roach, who starred the heavy-set Hardy and the plucky Laurel, announced he planned to use Hardy in a series of comedies called the Hardy Family.

Laurel denied he agreed to the separation, claiming he was "fired."

"We were working on a story, and although there had been difficulties, these were all ironed out and settled," he said. "I was amazed when notified the picture had been called off and my contract terminated."

MOTHER ABANDONS BABE ON TRESTLE

WOODLAND, Cal., March 16.—(UP)—A remorseful mother today faced criminal charges for the death of her four-year-old son. Mrs. Ralph Dickens, the mother, confessed that befuddled by wine, she left her boy on a railway trestle where he was killed by a train. Yolo county authorities said. She will face an inquest today.

The body of Lewis, the boy, was found by a trainman in shallow water beneath the trestle. A coat floating in the water was seen by the engineer from his cab. The boy's skull was fractured.

The mother's confession was given from a county hospital cot,

Trap Set For Burglar Kills Brother

CLEVELAND, March 16.—The trap set for a burglar who was shot Monday when he opened the closet to take money from his brother's trunk, Joseph Volcensek, 25, died in City hospital.

He was shot Monday when he opened the closet to take money from his brother's trunk. Having missed money several times, Rudolph fastened a gun on the wall inside the closet. When the door opened, a wire running from the doorknob to the trigger discharged the gun.

Before he died, Joseph admitted he had opened his brother's trunk twice before and had taken small sums of money.

His second projected flight through higher altitudes a failure because of a forced landing in Cleveland, the veteran round-the-world pilot said he would fly to Cleveland in a few days, take the Winnie Mae back to Los Angeles and prepare for another attempt.

GOVERNOR OF FRENCH COLONY LOST IN WILDS

Plane Carrying Prominent French Politician is Down in Jungles

BRASSAVILLE, French Equatorial Africa, March 16.—(UP)—Edouard Renard, governor of French Equatorial Africa, and his wife were lost in the African wilds today and it was feared their airplane might have crashed in virgin forest, 1,000 miles from civilization, in a district inhabited only by cannibals.

Mme. Renard, a Netherlands, the former Miss Marie Kuiker, is the widow of the American millionaire Michael Winburn, maker of Palmolive soap.

They left Brassaville, on the Congo river, in a three-motored official plane for an inspection of the wild Lake Chad district, 1,200 miles to the north in the African interior. They had been missing 24 hours today.

Two military airplanes searched for trace of them, and none was found.

Piloted by the chief of the Colonial Air Force, the plane left Brassaville at 8 a. m. yesterday. It was to fly over Lake Chad, 1,200 miles north, and then strike northeastward for another 500 miles to survey the triangle of the Tibesti district which France ceded to Italy. It was added to Tripolitania.

An hour later came a disturbing wireless message from the pilot. The big plane had passed safely through a tornado but was in a thick fog.

At 10 a. m. came a message that all was well.

Since then no airport or wireless station had seen or heard from the plane.

Renard, prominent in French politics, was prefect of the Seine department of France until he resigned in sympathy with Jean Chappede, Paris police chief, whom political figures tried to make a scapegoat at the time of the Stavinsky riots of February 6-7, 1934. He was appointed to the governor generalship.

Vidal said daily test flights will be made off the Pacific coast during the experiments.

"Much valuable information and experience has been gained from the flight, and the department is highly pleased with results in experiments for long distance radio navigation for aircraft over water," Vidal added.

HONOLULU FLIGHT AGAIN POSTPONED

WASHINGTON, March 16.—(UP)—Director Eugene L. Vidal of the Department of Commerce Bureau of Aeronautics, said today that experiments with the radio compass test plane at Oakland, Cal., airport will continue for "several days" before any flight to Hawaii is undertaken.

Vidal said daily test flights will be made off the Pacific coast during the experiments.

"Much valuable information and experience has been gained from the flight, and the department is highly pleased with results in experiments for long distance radio navigation for aircraft over water," Vidal added.

WILEY POST TO CONTINUE HIS STRATO TRIPS

Declares He Will Try and Try Until Nation Crossed in Seven Hours

NEW YORK, March 16.—(UP)—Wiley Post will try and try again until he spans the continent by way of the stratosphere in seven hours, he told reporters today.

His second projected flight through higher altitudes a failure because of a forced landing in Cleveland, the veteran round-the-world pilot said he would fly to Cleveland in a few days, take the Winnie Mae back to Los Angeles and prepare for another attempt.

Transcontinental and Western Air and Frank Phillips, Oklahoma oil millionaire, revealed they would sponsor Post in as many attempts as needed to achieve success. Post flew here last night after his forced landing at Cleveland.

"I guess I'd passed out in a few minutes if I hadn't headed for the ground," Post said of his misadventure. "I was flying at 30,000 feet when the oxygen gave out. But that altitude doesn't give you much notice."

Post was 100 miles east of Cleveland when the oxygen flowing through his specially constructed breathing helmet was exhausted. He had to retrace his course, landing 8 hours and 17 minutes after the takeoff from Burbank, Calif. Deducting time lost for this retracing, his record from Los Angeles to Cleveland was 7 hours and 19 minutes, bettering the old mark.

Post believed the flight demonstrated the practicability of commercial flights through the stratosphere. He predicted the day would come when "properly equipped" passenger planes would span the continent on 7-hour schedules. The Winnie Mae in lower altitudes has a top speed of 150 miles an hour. In the stratosphere, it has reached 350 to 450 miles an hour. Post's average speed yesterday was 278.

EMERSON CHILDREN LOST TO PARENTS

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—Three little youngsters, children of Walter W. Emerson and his wife, Jane Scholtz Emerson, packed up and "went over to Grandma's" today as the aftermath of their parents' sensational "wife swapping" divorce trial which Judge Ben B. Lindsey ended with a "no decision" ruling.

Judge Lindsey ruled that neither Mrs. Emerson, who frankly admitted indiscretions with Barton H. Sewell, wealthy yachtman, nor Emerson, an actor, who the judge said had "connived" at his wife's actions, showed proper grounds for divorce.

He warned the three minor children, Walter Jr., 11, Edmund, 2, and Barton, 1, to their maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Scholtz of Denver, Colo.

HAUPTMANN SEES 3 MEN GO TO CHAIR

TRENTON, N. J., March 16.—(UP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted as the murderer of the Lindbergh baby, saw three men go to death last night.

He shook hands with them, told them "pray to God," and bade them good-bye. He was calm, matter-of-fact.

Unless the courts intervene, some months hence Hauptmann will be led through the same little door that swallowed his three companions in the death house last night. He betrayed no emotion.

Connie Scarbone, 26, Michael Mule, 24, and George De Stefano Jr., 25, died in the chair for the murder of John Szczypkowski in a holdup in Trenton in 1933.

VERSAILLES PACT AGAIN DENOUNCED

German President Startles World by Announcing Plans for Large Army

PROCLAMATION READ

Universal Conscription is Given Approval Today at Cabinet Conference

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, March 16.—(UP)—State department officials and high army and navy officers disagreed today over significance of Germany's decision to return military forces to a universal conscription basis.

State department officials reserved official comment but made no secret that they regarded the German move a blow to world disarmament, and perhaps to the peace of Europe.

High military and naval officials, however, regarded the German move as one advancing the genuine cause of peace through the re-establishment of the "balance of power" as it existed in Europe before 1914.

BULLETIN

PARIS, March 16.—(UP)—News of Germany's arms plans sent Foreign Minister Pierre Laval hurrying to the Quai D'Orsay late today. It was believed France would consult at once with Great Britain, Italy and Russia.

BULLETIN

LONDON, March 16.—(UP)—Speedy consultation between France and Great Britain was foreseen today as a result of the German action in violation of the Versailles treaty.

BERLIN, March 16.—(UP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, in a sudden, breath-taking announcement, today denounced the military clauses of the Versailles treaty and proclaimed immediate general military conscription in Germany.

Germany's denunciation of the treaty clause and institution of universal military service rocked a Europe already tense with the increasing momentum of an arms race among the big powers. France and Great Britain already had moved this week toward increased armed strength.

Neither the Hitler proclamation nor the new law specifically said that Germany denounces the military clauses of the Versailles treaty but the conscription law actually was a denunciation and violation of the treaty.

The Hitler decision was disclosed in an atmosphere of drama and suspense at the propaganda ministry after the cabinet had approved.

The Reichsfuehrer's proclamation revived Germany's objections to the Versailles treaty and voiced the nation's disappointment in the failure of other powers to disarm.

Then it openly proclaimed the plans of Hitler.

"Germany then saw herself forced to take measures for her own protection and is now publishing those measures, part of which already have been adopted," the proclamation said. The air force was announced earlier as being put on a military basis.

The proclamation was divided into three sections.

1.—Universal military service.

2.—Dividing the German peacetime army (limited to 100,000 men

LATE NEWS FLASHES

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 16.—(UP)—A change in Governor Frank P. Merriam's cabinet loomed today with confirmation of rumors that Carlos W. Huntington of Long Beach, state director of professional and vocational standards, planned to retire from the $6000-a-year position and re-enter private business.

NEW YORK, March 16.—(UP)—Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J., today regained the men's national indoor tennis championship after a year's lapse, by defeating Berkeley, Calif. of New York in the final. The score was 6-5, 7-5, 2-6, 2-6, 6-2.

by the Versailles treaty) to 12 army corps and 26 divisions.

2—Empowering General Blumberg to take measures necessary to carry out the law approved by the cabinet.

Joseph Goebbels, summoning correspondents to the propaganda ministry for the announcement, personally read the proclamation, revealing that Hitler on Friday had suddenly interrupted his Bavarian vacation.

The Nazi chieftain returned then to Berlin where, Friday evening, a cabinet meeting was held.

The full cabinet met today and adopted the universal conscription law.

Tomorrow—Sunday—Hitler will attend services commemorating the German heroes on Memorial day at the state opera house and, at that time, he will elucidate the proclamation to the assembled military leaders.

The Hitler proclamation deplored the rearmament of other nations after Germany had fulfilled her obligations to disarm under the Versailles treaty.

"There is a cry of war today as if there had never been a world war or a Versailles treaty," the proclamation said.

The Hitler proclamation remarked that Germany in recent years repeatedly had indicated willingness to join in disarmament plans, but "these plans always were rejected by the others."

The proclamation detailed arms and military equipment which Germany destroyed under terms of the Versailles treaty.

It added that, notwithstanding this destruction, other nations failed to live up to their part in the agreement, which was that all nations would reduce their arms.

Reads Proclamation

Goebbels read the proclamation to foreign correspondents in a voice which shook with suppressed emotion.

In the statement, Hitler insisted that Germany's purpose in rearmament was to preserve peace for herself and the rest of Europe.

"Therefore," he said, "we recall Mr. Baldwin's (Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain) observation that that nation which fails to develop her own defenses will never find itself a powerful nation."

The proclamation bristled with such statements as:

"After this fulfillment by Germany of a duty without parallel in the world's history (observation of the treaty), Germany has the right to expect others would disarm."

"Germany was prepared to accept the MacDonald plan (Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald of Britain). Germany took it as the ground work for disarmament. But it was shattered on the opposition of other powers."

"But since disarmament has not come, Germany could no longer take any part in such conferences."

(Germany withdrew from the disarmament conference.)

Goebbels tonight will address a mass meeting at the huge sports palace as part of the observance of Sunday's Memorial day and he is expected to refer to the new law and the proclamation.

The law was entitled "strengthening the German Defense Army" and was signed by Hitler and members of the cabinet.

SEARCH MADE FOR WITNESS TO ACCIDENT

While officers opened a wide search for an important witness to a hit-run wreck in Huntington Beach Thursday night which claimed the life of a Los Angeles man, the three passengers of the truck involved were tangled in the toils of the law.

Thomas H. Johnson, 42, 468 South Center street, Orange, and reported to be connected with the municipal trash and garbage service there, and Mrs. Alice Converse Dalton, 30, 507 East Pine street, Santa Ana, were arraigned today in the Huntington Beach justice court on charges of manslaughter and failure to stop and render aid after an accident. Their preliminary hearings were set for March 25 at 10 a. m. and bail was fixed at $5000 each.

The double charges resulted in the refusal of the man or woman to accept blame for driving the truck at the time of the accident.

When Santa Ana police stopped the truck several hours after the crash, Mrs. Dalton was driving but she named Johnson as the driver in the beach city.

Mrs. Freddie Garrison, 26, also of 507 East Pine street, their companion, was sentenced to spend 15 days in the county jail by Judge Chris Pann of Huntington Beach yesterday. When brought to the jail, however, she became hysterical and suffered so much from delirium tremens, according to jail officials, that she was removed to the Orange County hospital.

District Attorney S. E. Kaufman issued an appeal today for the location of the unknown motorist who drove up behind the accident and gave first aid to the injured persons before driving on.

The car driven by Miss Elizabeth Maloney of Los Angeles and in which her father, W. W. Maloney, 80, suffered fatal injuries, was virtually demolished. Others hurt were Mrs. Maloney, 75, Mrs. Glenn Bradford, and Mrs. M. K. Wise, all of Los Angeles.

Parts of the Maloney car were imbedded in the truck body from the force of the head-on impact and led to the ultimate identification of the truck in Santa Ana after radio broadcasts had been sent out.

All three occupants of the truck had been drinking before their arrest, according to officers.

Maloney passed away shortly before noon yesterday in the Los Angeles Methodist hospital and the funeral and inquest will be held in Los Angeles.

JUDGMENT CLAIM

STILL UNSETTLED

Whether an $8214 judgment against Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Atherton, former Buena Park residents who were enriched last summer by a $50,000 sweepstakes winning, will stand or be set aside by superior court, today remained in doubt, following a hearing before Judge G. K. Sevel late yesterday, who continued the matter to next Friday for a decision.

Validity of a revival of the judgment in 1933 was the crux of the attack upon the judgment yesterday, as Attorney Leonard Evans, of Anaheim, representing the Athertons, argued to the court that the judgment was void and should be set aside.

Originally the judgment amounted to $8089.56, being first awarded in 1926 to the J. E. Walter company, Anaheim automobile firm. When revived in 1933 it had grown to $8412. Until Mrs. Atherton received the $50,000 sweepstakes prize from an English horse race last December no steps were taken to collect the judgment. But several days ago, the Athertons' expensive new automobile was said to have been attached by the Los Angeles county sheriff. They now reside at Westwood Village, in that county.

In court yesterday, their counsel contended that after the original judgment was awarded the Walter company became a defunct corporation and went out of existence, being in that state when the judgment was revived in 1933. As a non-existent corporation, he argued, the company had no legal right to transact business, to sue or be sued; therefore the judgment revival was void.

Attorneys C. N. Mozley and Harry Westover, representing the Walter company, contended that there was nothing on the court record at the time of the revival to show that the corporation was defunct, and that the court cannot now go outside of the record to find that such was the case; therefore the revival of judgment is valid.

Gable, Bennett

Teamed In Film

Constance Bennett and Clark Gable are teamed for the first time in "After Office Hours," new film which will come to the Broadway theater on Sunday, March 24, according to an announcement made today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

The picture is said to be a sparkling society thriller, fast-paced and exciting, as well as being full of witty dialogue and romantic sequences.

An exceptionally strong supporting cast features Stuart Erwin, Billie Burke, Harvey Stephens, Katherine Stephens, Katherine Alexander, Henry Travers and others.

APPROVE GRANT FOR ANAHEIM'S SCHOOL

ANAHEIM, March 16.—Word has been received by the Anaheim Union High school board that the school's application for an outright grant of $99,000 had been approved by P.W.A. The grant, when received, will be used in construction of the new high school unit.

According to Principal J. A. Claves the trustees are daily expecting final approval of plans for the remaining units in the building from the office of the state architect. This approval has been delayed while T. C. Kistner, the school architect, made minor changes suggested by the state board. Plans now in the office of the state board of architects and awaiting approval are for the auditorium building, and first and second floors of the library and classroom buildings.

PLAN EXHIBIT OF PRODUCTS OF COOPERATIVES

Plans are progressing rapidly for an Orange County Cooperative and Home Products Exposition in Santa Ana next week, following close and somewhat after the order of the Rehabilitation Exposition that is now being held in Los Angeles.

Starting on Wednesday, March 20, the Exposition here will continue till Saturday night, and will be staged at 602 West Fourth street, according to announcement today by H. F. Kenny, who is acting as program chairman for the event. Harry W. Bedford is chairman of the committee on exhibits.

Among those who have been active in making preliminary plans for the meet are Ernest S. Wooster, Sydney H. Wilde and Dale E. Winterbourne.

Bedford reports that some of the exhibits that have been on display in Los Angeles this week will be seen in the Santa Ana showing. The main object of the event is to let the people see what is being done in Orange County co-operatively and for the benefit of the less-favored of our population, he said.

Local cooperatives are preparing exhibits and some of the local producers and manufacturers will have displays also.

Through the cooperation of local SERRA authorities, there will be a special showing of clothing now being manufactured here as an SERRA project, including quilts, dresses and various other articles. The products of cooperatives working on similar lines will also be on display.

Kenny announced that the SERRA orchestra and band have been booked for programs in connection with the event. The SERRA Concert Orchestra with some 14 pieces will provide the opening program from 3 to 4 p. m. on Wednesday. The band will play at that location on Thursday from 2:30 to 3:30 o'clock and from 7:15 to 8:15 p. m. The dance orchestra will appear on Friday from 3 to 4 o'clock, and the Hill Billies and the Banjo Novelty will feature the programs on Saturday from 1:30 to 2:30 and from 7:15 to 8:15 p. m.

The Exposition is made possible by the fact that the building is available at no extra cost for a few days at this time. There is no charge being made for space to exhibitors, and there will be no admission fees or collections in connection with the event. It is entirely a goodwill enterprise, Kenny said, and the fullest cooperation of the citizens of Orange county is earnestly desired.

He urged that everyone should make an effort to become thoroughly informed as to just what is going on in our county in a cooperative way, and to get an idea of some of the things that are being planned for the immediate future.

MAN BURNED WHEN STOVE EXPLODES

Seriously burned late yesterday when a gasoline stove exploded in his face, Roland Moore, 67, 715 Pythias street, Anaheim, was rushed to the county hospital for treatment. Hospital attaches said today that Moore had first and second degree burns about the face, head, hands, arms and body, and has a fair chance for recovery.

Moore, who lives in a small house in the rear of 715 Pythias street, was cooking his supper when the gasoline stove he was using exploded. The flaming gasoline sprayed over his face and hands. He rushed from the house and rolled in some shrubbery in an attempt to put out the flames. Neighbors used a garden hose in quenching the fire.

The fire department was called and assisted in giving Moore first aid until the arrival of an ambulance which took him to the hospital.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

BEVERLY HILLS, March 16.—(To the Editor of The Register):—I have often said that with all our kidding or cussing our public officials, that they are as good or better than we who elect em. Well we got a fine example of it in the papers this morning, John Steven McGroarty, who wrote Californias famous Mission Play. A great writer, a real humanitarian, and fine and beloved type of real gentleman, (I expect Los Angeles' most universally popular citizen) one of his voters wrote him an insulting letter wanting to know why he hadn't put trees on the Sierra Madre Mountains. McGroarty's reply "One of the drawbacks of being a Congressman is that I have to receive impertinent letters from a jackass like you. Will you please take two running jumps and go to h—". Score one for Congress.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

RESOLUTION SENT SENATOR ON VOTE STAND

Attended by at least 1600 persons who jammed every bit of space in the large First Methodist church auditorium, a mass meeting of Santa Ana and Orange County Townsend clubs was held last night to hear Francis Cuttle of Riverside, lately returned from Washington, D. C., in the interests of the old age pension movement.

Prior to talks by Cuttle and Roy Webb, state divisional manager for this district, several letters and resolutions were read by Charles Dixon of Santa Ana, chairman of the meeting and the county advisory council of Townsend clubs. Chief interest centered in the unanimous passage of a resolution to State Senator Nelson Edmonds of Orange, demanding that he vote favorably for reconsideration of a bill to memorialize congress to enact the Townsend plan into law, and reprimanding him for his negative vote several days ago.

The resolution was read by Grant Henderson of Santa Ana. It declared that a bill was pending before congress, that Governor Merriam had given his approval of the plan, that Senator Edwards voted against the senate memorialization but yet had time to vote for reconsideration of the first action. It said further that "it is the sense of this mass meeting of Orange County Townsend clubs and friends that Senator Edwards be reprimanded for having voted against the pending Townsend bill and be requested to vote for reconsideration when it comes up for recommendation."

A copy is to be sent to Edwards and the daily press.

Many States Act

In a brief talk before Cuttle's appearance, Webb pointed out that 14 state legislatures have memorialized congress, 140 city councils over the United States have taken the same action, and that barely a year old, the Townsend movement has become mightier than any other similar campaign in American history. He declared that there are now about 30,000,000 voters behind the plan as represented on petitions urging congress to enact the plan into law.

Cuttle gave an intimate picture of Townsend developments in the national capital and described the intense fight being made to win support of national legislators. He pointed out that the popular support of the movement is overwhelming its sponsors and mail has become enormously heavy.

"Our present objective is to get the bill out of the ways and means committee and to have it go on the floor of the senate for debate and passage," Cuttle said. "Our leaders have been heckled and ridiculed but the plan remains as strong as ever."

The speaker said that the strongest ally to the movement was Dr. Robert Doane, one of the foremost economists in the nation and a consultant of big business and many government agencies.

Dr. Doane analyzed the plan and then appeared before the senate committee and testified that it was absolutely sound and feasible, Cuttle said.

Digressing briefly, Cuttle said it would be a calamity if Senator Huey Long should gain control of the country, and told of several amusing incidents involving the Louisiana solon.

Cites Calculations

Using Dr. Doane's calculations, Cuttle explained how the income from the two per cent transactions tax would more than take care of the qualified persons enrolling for pensions, and further declared that the hue and cry of critics about high taxes was exaggerated, and that the tax to consumer would not be as high as claimed.

"As anyone knows who has studied the plan, it will relieve unemployment, put young men to work, put more money into circulation, spread the taxation burden equally, and restore business," Cuttle concluded.

Answering questions from the floor, Cuttle said that Congressman Sam Collins was in favor of a pension plan, was attending many meetings and committee hearings, and had agreed to vote for the Townsend plan if it was the outstanding and most feasible proposition submitted for vote. Cuttle said he had no idea how Senator Hiram Johnson stood.

Before the meeting, Dixon read a letter that had been sent to Senator Long of Louisiana, asking him to give favorable consideration to the Townsend plan and not overlook it because he was promoting a similar proposition. Dixon also read a copy of letters and telegrams sent to Senator Edwards concerning the defeat of the memorialization measure.

Dixon announced that the next mass meeting would be held probably in Irvine park at a date to be announced later.

Seidel was in the parked car. Gerken was riding with Benson, whom he charges with negligent driving.

SPRING EVENT TO BE GIVEN BY S. A. SYMPHONY

BY MRS. RUSSEL ROWLAND

An interesting and diverse program is promised by Director Elwood Bear and members of the Santa Ana Symphony orchestra at a spring concert to be presented in the First Methodist church, Sixth and Spurgeon streets, at 4:30 p. m. tomorrow. There will be no charge for admission.

The first work on the program is Symphony in D Major, by Haydn, often called the "London Symphony." The first movement, which begins with a brief Adagio introduction, is a masterpiece of simplicity and design, with freshness of melody and rhythm.

The second movement, or Andante, is a kind of variation on a beautiful melody in the nature of a folk-song. The scherzo reveals Haydn in one of his most playful moods.

In the trio we hear a bizarre effect in the strings and woodwinds that might have been penned by one of our modern composers. The finale, more serious in mood, is dominated throughout by a chorale-like theme, and contains a fugue.

Following this, three excerpts from Wagner's Lohengrin will be played: Prelude; the Procession to the Cathedral (in the second act); and the prelude and first scene of the third act. The famous Prelude has for its only theme the Holy Grail. The ethereal beauty of the music portrays the vision of angels bearing the Grail earthward, where its glory is shed upon the worshipper, after which the angels retreat into heaven.

The excerpt from the second act of the opera portrays a long procession of gorgeously dressed women, going from the castle to the cathedral on the morning of Elsa's wedding day. The joyous prelude to the third act is the incarnation of a wedding festival, and is followed by the music of the first scene.

The waltz from Tchaikowsky's ballet suite, "The Sleeping Beauty," will follow next instead of the "Waltz of the Flowers" as previously announced. The music exhibits all the charm and appeal characteristic of its composer.

From his impressions of a visit in northern Africa, Saint-Saens wrote the Algerian Suite, two movements of which will be heard. In "Reverie du Soir," the languorous, fascinating music depicts a moonlight night at Bidah. In movement "Marche Militaire Francaise" the music is spirited and bright, and in it the composer is said to pay a possibly unconscious homage to Rossini.

JONES STANDS FOR ECONOMY AND PROGRESS

It is important that Santa Ana go forward on a sound basis, with business-like control of municipal tax monies, it was declared today by D. Jones Jr., of 702 Grand avenue, candidate for the city council from the second ward, who has been endorsed by the Taxpayers League, in making formal announcement of his candidacy.

Jones' record since coming to Santa Ana 20 years ago includes purchase of a 24-acre walnut ranch, with a George Hasenjaeger as his associate, and the subdivision of the tract into Eastwood Park, a residential district on East Fourth street at Grand avenue.

In putting these residential lots on the market, they put in and paved and sidewalks, together with utilities, and himself built more than a dozen nice homes. He retains some seven acres of the original tract in producing walnuts which he now cares for.

"I believe in progress for the community without waste of tax money," Jones said today. "We who have made our investments here want to see the city progress on a safe and sound basis, but our tax bills are so large they also convince us of the necessity of using all possible economy in our city administration."

"There must be a constructive program of needed municipal improvements, and the relief of unemployment, so that while providing jobs for the needy we are also getting something of permanent value for taxpayers of the community."

"If elected, I shall stand for an honest and square administration of city affairs, with a fair deal to all, and shall support Mr. LeGaye and others on the board in a program for sensible economy, so that our city tax bills shall be held down within limits which we can pay, while not sacrificing the necessary operations of city departments."

Before coming to Santa Ana, Jones was a resident of Ogden, Iowa, where he served as town assessor, town clerk, and member of the board of education. Besides his Santa Ana holdings, he still owns extensive acreage in Iowa and also an orange grove in San Bernardino county.

From the Register building, the carriers were taken to Walker's State theater where they were guests of Manager Vic Walker for the evening.

Editor, Register,

Dear Sir:

A human being, after exposure to the itch, should not be condemned for scratching. The trouble can be eradicated only by better sanitation.

By the same token we should not be too hasty in our condemnation of anarchy, Bolshevism and Communism. We should expect the laws of cause and effect to operate as they do in the spread of any other epidemic.

The conditions which produce these plagues are too well known to be rehearsed.

It is up to our administrators and law makers to forget about the 1935 elections and attend to their jobs; effecting arrangements whereby there shall be adequate purchasing power amongst the masses.

They should give every able-bodied man and woman an opportunity to become self-supporting and to create wealth, instead of the insane idea of limiting production and destroying wealth in the interest of profit, while millions are scarcely above the bread-line while other millions are inadequately clothed and sheltered and undernourished. In short, if we do not wish to have Communists in the country, stop making them.

WILDFLOWERS PROVE LURE FOR AUTO TRIPS

Lupine dominate the wildflower displays beautifying many acres this week, according to reports reaching the Automobile Club of Southern California touring bureau.

Among the widespread fields solid with color are those at the foot of the Grapevine, north end of the Ridge Route, and in the Arvin-Edison area, 22 miles southeast of Bakersfield where the vividness of many varieties is inspiring the annual Arvin Wildflower Festival, tomorrow at 2:30 p. m.

Ocotillo flower festival in celebration of the masses of crimson beauty is being held tomorrow afternoon in the Borego Valley between Julian, San Diego County, and Kane Springs, near Salton Sea. Desert lilies, rarest of arid blossoms, are out in abundance about Kane Springs and west into the Borego Valley, where cacti blossoms also enhance the attractive landscape.

Many varieties in large masses are to be seen east of Porterville, in the vicinity of Santa Maria and Paso Robles, at various points on the Coast Highway south of Ventura, around Lake Elsinore, near Oceanside, on hills of La Mesa near San Diego, and in fields below Carlsbad. Hills are yellow from Laguna to Torrey Pines with cornucopia of Ocotillo and incensea are found in brilliant battalions throughout Devil's Canyon between Jacumba and Coyote Wells in the section near the boundary of Imperial and San Diego Counties. Wild lilac and lupine are beginning to blossom in numerous spots in the San Diego mountain land.

Desert blossoms such as verbena and scarlet incensea are appearing in considerable numbers in the Palm Springs area, with spanish bayonet in full bloom for the first time in 14 years between Banning and Whitewater. Other desert areas reporting fields of blossoms are Death Valley between Stovepipe Wells and Furnace Creek, and in the vicinity of Orderville.

When the last Ice Age was at its height, approximately 12,000,000 square miles of the earth's surface was covered with ice, or about twice the area so covered now.

KEEN INTEREST IN PRODUCTION OF S. A. PLAYERS

By Eleanor Elliott

Offering opportunity for Santa Ana Community Players to demonstrate their ability to do character work, Franz Molnar's famous stage play "Lilium" was presented last night in Eboli auditorium as the second major production of the association season. The first night audience received the play with the close interest it deserved, watching in the involved plot unfold in the capable hands of a finely chosen cast.

Foreign in atmosphere, "Lilium" finds its setting in Budapest, and characters are those to be found in or near a small amusement park. Adding to the quality of unfamiliarity, is the fact that Molnar, in developing the psychology of his theme, transfers interest from the known realm of the present, to the unknown realm of the after life, with its heavenly police court and officials.

This offers a tremendous problem for the Community Players' association to cope with, but under the direction of Gladys Simpson Shafer, the Players succeeded in presenting a truly convincing portrayal. Furthermore the technical staff, of which Mrs. Marshall Harnois is head, made unusually artistic settings for the successive scenes. These were designed by Max Holmes, and executed by him and other members of the technical staff.

Character Portrayal Good Burr Shafer in the role of the swaggering "Lilium" barkeeper, "Mrs. Muskat's" carrousel, invested that part with bitterness, wildness, and at the same time, a certain naive childishness that made it a remarkably fine piece of characterization. There was humor in the lighter moments, and there was definite pathos in his puzzled manner in heavier scenes.

"Julie," the little servant girl whose love for Lilium changed the whole course of her life, was played with fine understanding and charm by Katherine Barr. The smooth precision of her work promises well for similar major roles in future Community Plays. Appearing with her in the opening scene, was Mary Batten Steffenson as "Marie," a character which she invested with many entertaining features. Her work with "Wolf Berkowitz," (played by Victor Rees) was excellent, and as a comedy team, they proved one of the outstanding features of the evening. Both used finesse in presenting their humor, so that it was most refreshing.

Louis Rees Auer did one of the finest characterizations in her "Mrs. Muskat," although that of Wilma Silver as "Mother Hollunder" was equally good, especially considering that youth was called upon to simulate a doddering old age. The future villainy of Glenn Shaw's "Fieser" was another outstanding characterization.

Many Aid in Cast This group might be said to constitute the major characters but there remained a large cast portraying small roles, each important in developing the plot, and each portrayed with a skill that made it stand out. John Colman as "Nellie," and Carl and Crawford Nalle, each doubling their duties by assuming second roles. Colman not only played in the embankment scene as "Linzman," the messenger, but later in the "Courtroom of the Beyond" as the "Old Guard."

Carl's two roles were "The Carpenter" and again in the bit after life, the Richly Dressed Man" while Nalle appeared both as a policeman and as the "Captain."

"The Magistrate" of the scene in the "Beyond," was invested with dignity and understanding by Arthur Collins, while the two policemen having active part with him, were J. Leslie Steffenson and Clarence Harnois. In the final scene, Betty Jo Williams played a charming "Louise," the unknown daughter of the tragic "Lilium."

Harold Fish as "Young Hollunder," was another character bit, while playing other roles were Victor Morrison, a policeman; Charles Applegate and Dr. Arthur Wade, mounted policemen; Robert Horn as the "Doctor," and Maurice Anderson as "Fieser's" brother, Brownridge, Frances Roper, and Agnes McKinstry as "Four Servant Girls."

Costumes were quaint and colorful, stage settings were artistic in the extreme, and incidental music under direction of Leland Auer, added to the atmosphere. "Lilium" will have its final performance tonight in Eboli auditorium, where the curtain will rise at 8:15 o'clock.

William H. Penn, below, incumbent councilman, today announced his candidacy for election on April 8.

WILLIAM PENN IN RACE FOR CITY COUNCIL

"William H. Penn, incumbent, today announced his candidacy for the city council, representing the second ward, and filed his completed nomination papers in the city clerk's office.

"Penn is a taxpayer, residing with his family at 1806 Spurgeon street," his formal announcement said. "He has lived in Santa Ana for 19 years, except for the two years he was in France during the World War. He also has been active in American Legion work. "During his service on the city council, which began in 1932, Penn has served as fire commissioner. His supporters declare that he has been instrumental in helping the department to bring about economies, as well as marked improvement.

"Penn took office during the latter part of the fiscal year 1932-3 in that year the operating cost of the fire department was $68,814. Last year it was $53,268. This Penn's friends point out, represents a reduction in operating cost of $15,546, or more than 22 per cent. In the first nine months of this year the outlay has been $33,292, or 37 per cent less than the monthly cost of last year. This reduction, Penn's supporters declare, has been made by careful watching of expenditures other than salaries, no men having lost jobs as a result of this saving. In order that Santa Ana residents enjoy the present low fire insurance rates, the personnel and efficiency of this department has been maintained.

"Penn's friends point out that he has supported every worthwhile SERRA project which has come before the council, so that local men could have work in Santa Ana, and the city could receive the benefit of the improvement. Penn will maintain the same policy in the future, he said. "It is on the basis of his record in office that Penn's friends are urging his election on April 8." Penn is employed with the county welfare department.

Transients Work On State Farms To Produce Food

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 16.—Demonstrating the value of production-for-use farming as a relief measure, California's first two government ranches operated as aid and rehabilitation centers for jobless men are today bringing in the first of products that are helping to feed the state's transient homeless.

Reports received by H. A. R. Carleton, state director of the Federal Transient Service, revealed that the two farms established by the government relief organization in California last year are now beginning to pay their way in food supplies which they are furnishing for use in the various transient work camps of the state.

One of the ranches is located near Antioch, forty miles from Oakland, and the other is in San Bernardino county, seventy miles from Los Angeles.

Both are being worked entirely by non-resident indigent men who applied to the government for assistance after becoming stranded in California. The majority of the men are out-of-work farm laborers, and owners or tenants who were operating farms of their own until forced out by the drought of last year, according to the reports.

A total of approximately 1000 transient men are now being used to work the two farms, the timers laboring on the same hourly basis and for the same remuneration in the form of maintenance and $5 cash monthly as do the thousands of other transients quartered in the transient work camps of California.

MAN AT END OF EDISON FIRM DISTRICT MEET

More than 450 Orange county Edison company shareholders and guests assembled in the Temple theater here yesterday noon to hear the first stockholder's meeting broadcast over the private telephone wires of the Southern California Edison company.

Seated in the theater, the stockholders heard the business reports of the meeting held in Los Angeles, the annual election when officers and directors were reelected, and talks by Harry J. Bauer, president, W. C. Mullendore, vice-president, and by Fred B. Lewis, vice-president and general manager.

The meeting here was one of 12 held in the large district served by the Edison company. It was the first time the unique method of permitting all stockholders to participate in an annual meeting was used.

In his report Mullendore urged the shareholders as citizens of their communities to investigate carefully proposals for municipal ventures into the electric utility business. He said also that the company has no "watered stock" or "write-ups" in value, non-voting stock, etc.

President Bauer said that the Edison company is not owned by a wealthy few, but by 121,000 people, at least 90 per cent of whom are people of moderate means.

Lewis discussed business aspects of the past year. At the close of the meeting Rodney E. Bacon, Orange county divisional manager, urged the shareholders to write to company headquarters, giving their opinions of the new method of allowing stockholders to take part in the annual meetings.

Prior to the program, the guests visited the sewing room, where 13 power sewing machines and a button hole machine are installed for use of the women, and where dresses, quilts and many other garments were on display.

The program included many orchestra numbers by the Newport Beach group, a skit by Newport Beach, and a solo by Cleo Triplett. Mrs. F. E. Besides the work already mentioned, the workers, who number 20 each day in the sewing rooms, also gather to cook lunch for the other workers.

Thomas Bohanan and his quartet, of the Church of Christ, sang a group of numbers. The children and young people who modeled the clothing walked up an improvised stairway to the floor of one of the large co-operative trucks which has been temporarily arranged with palm plants and flowers into a stage. Mrs. Moll played for the modeling.

Those who modeled were Melva Virgoe, Frances Moll, Pearl Folles, Alberta Shaffer, Wanda Lee Kelly, Opal Fitzgerald, Louise Simmons, Sarah Jane Albee, Margaret Baker, Velma Williams, Betty Swan, Lois Wilson, Duane Hooser, Beverly Augustus, Buddy Beadle, Mary Ann Beadle, Bill Pinneo, Louise Albee and Mickey Shipman.

SHELL GAME TRIED ON SHELL SERVICE

ANAHEIM, March 16.—Believe it or not, three young men attempted to revive the old shell game here yesterday. A strange angle is that the men chose operators of a Shell service station on North Los Angeles as their victims.

According to a report to the police the three men approached the station and started manipulating the little ball and three shells inviting bets as to which shell concealed the ball. Police were notified and Chief of Police James Bouldin and Officers Rude and Sherman responded.

WASHINGTON

RUMORS

The AAA would like to start a campaign to blow under every third rumor. The latest one which has sprung up to annoy the officials is the erroneous story that cotton loans might be stopped. This yarn is supposed to have been largely responsible for the recent break in the cotton market. The administration has investigated to learn who started it and has a fair idea of the identity of the culprits, but no proof.

As a result, the AAA-ers are prodding Chairman Jones of the House Agriculture Committee to hurry along his bill requiring a reporting system for the cotton markets, similar to the one now in force on the grain exchange. This would enable the government to know which operators are short or long and likely to profit by fanning bad rumors. They say this reporting system has virtually stopped rumor-fanning on the grain exchange.

INGENUITY

Another sour one now in circulation is that the AAA has insufficient money to meet the third payment on the corn-hog contracts. Whoever started this one failed to read the AAA law. It is so worded that such a situation never can arise.

The Treasury may advance AAA funds for payments on contracts and then reimburse itself later from processing tax receipts. Therefore the AAA can pay until the Treasury itself runs dry.

BONFIRES

The business of rumor-spreading is not confined to marketeers. Whenever any particular group cannot find out what the New Deal is going to do on an issue, it usually invents a rumor that the administration will do such-and-such. This fictitious story arouses administration officials, who then announce what their real course will be. The fictitious story merely acts as a bonfire to smoke the government out.

As a result, there are generally more rumors in Washington than starlings.

The system is not particularly new, but brisk activity has given it increased prominence lately. (You may recall that President Roosevelt's holding company message was inspired by planted rumors that he would withdraw the legislation.)

PIPE-FIXING

No neater plumbing job was ever done in Congress than the one the plumbers did in the Senate appropriations committee.

When the relief bill came out of that committee, it contained a strange provision permitting Mr. Roosevelt to put the government into any business, except the plumbing business. It specifically required him to let all relief works plumbing out to private firms. All lobbyists gasped at the provision with envy and wondered how it got into the bill.

The truth seems to be that the labor group fixed that Congressional pipe line for the plumbers. The industry is highly organized. The labor boys knew the provision would guarantee a union wage scale for plumbers, even if they failed to get the prevailing wage for carpenters, plasterers, etc.

Therefore, labor Senator McCarran threw the Stillman wrench into the bill for the plumbers, after his prevailing wage amendment was defeated.

PRIVACY

The pink slip which you filed with your income tax this time never will be made public. All Congressional authorities are certain that the repealer will be passed by Congress some time before adjournment. Even the progressive Senators fighting against it will privately admit they have little chance of stopping the repealer. They can filibuster for a while, but not from now until the end of the session, against a small bill like that.

The Treasury is planning to make the slips public in October so Congress has lots of time.

PROFITS

General Johnson may get rich out of flailing the Pied Pipers. He is swamped with contract offers, has signed three luscious magazine contracts and is publishing a book. His spokesman says he is so busy he will not have time for much radio work. His office here is as big and as busy as Huey Long's. Police motormen come up fast, and disappear the same way.

NOTES

Senator Byrnes (S. C.) is carrying his arm in a sling because he tried to stop a dog fight. It was not connected in any way with a recent radio affray.

There are 21 separate and distinct code authorities functioning under the construction code.

Well known ex-Senator Fess (Ohio) may be seen daily in the Congressional library studying political history.

The bonuses have had no success whatever in their efforts to smoke the White House out on what it will accept in the nature of a bonus compromise. The answer is that it will not accept anything as long as it believes the Senate will sustain a veto.

Certain code authorities believe they can notice that the Senate NRA squabble is beginning to hurt business. Some manufacturers are holding back production slightly, because they can produce goods more cheaply if the NRA is discontinued.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

SMOOTH

There are several intriguing angles to the government's decision to abolish national bank notes by retiring the 2 per cent consolidated and Panama Canal bonds on which are based with part of the profit from gold devaluation. New York sharp calls it a smart move. They say it means absolutely nothing in practical terms — and yet it pleases all but a few.

It means nothing because in essence it merely substitutes one form of currency for another — with no change in net volume. Money radicals seem to think it replaces interest-bearing obligations with non-interest bearing paper money — which isn't the case at all. If it makes them happy to figure that way it's O. K. with conservatives.

The only other practical effect is to reduce the total government debt by $475,000,000 — or roughly 2 per cent — which hardly seems to call for lozannes one way or the other. Banks which lose the money issue privilege don't give a darn. They have no chance of making a profit out of it with money rates so low anyway.

MIRACLE

Conservatives in general approve because they think it's sound to simplify the currency and because they'd rather see the gold profit used to pay debts than for inflationary purposes. Also they're glad to see that profit actually employed — thereby removing a temptation to Congress.

Inflationists for their part are happy because they rate it a step toward taking money control out of the hands of the bankers and because it is a showdown interpreted as preasing currency expansion.

New York was amused at the Treasury's obvious solicitude to make it clear that this was not inflation. Elaborate and inspired explanations to that effect were quite unnecessary so far as bankers were concerned. Comment runs that the age of miracles isn't over. Super-conservatives Edwin Kemmerer and O. M. W. Sprague heartily endorse the retirement of the bonds. So do Father Coughlin and Senator Elmer Thomas. Talk about the lion and the lamb.

CRUMBLING

Watch Belgium next week. This little nation is sick and tired of playing stooge to France without adequate recompense.

Belgium depends on her foreign trade for economic existence to a much greater extent than her big ally. Consequently she's hit much harder by the falling pound than France. She wants trade concessions from France if she's to continue carrying the gold banner — and she isn't likely to get them.

New York insiders understand that Premier George Theunis will present a stiff ultimatum at next week's conference. The expense of the conference will probably cost the gold bloc a member. Experts predict the dyke will crumble fast once it springs a leak.

FAUX PAS

Financial circles learn that the administration won't press as hard for Marriner Eccles' confirmation as governor of the Federal Reserve Board as you might expect.

The word is that Mr. Eccles committed a couple of faux pas when he testified before the Senate Committee on the new banking bill. It's understood the Treasury didn't care for his criticism of the proposed open market committee. Still worse was his suggestion for increasing taxes — an idea the administration isn't anxious to foster just at present.

WRONG

Informed New Yorkers predict that the Patman bonus bill — carrying payment in new currency — will go roaring through Congress shortly to the exclusion of the Vinson bill officially backed by Commander Belgrano of the American Legion.

Scouts report that Patman has won out with some deep parliamentary strategy. His supporters registered the point that this bill would only have to override one veto because it provides a method of payment. The Vinson bill, on the other hand, stands to be vetoed twice — once as a bonus proposition and again if and when repassed with a special tax or bond issue attached.

Patman has also won converts by accepting an amendment which minimizes the threat of uncontrolled inflation. The revised bill will call for the deposit of bonds with the Federal Reserve as cover for the new currency — acting as a check on overexpansion and making everything shipshape and legal.

Ex-Senator Robert L. Owen of the Sound Money League had a lot to do with getting the revision across.

This development would leave Commander Belgrano in the unenviable position of having backed the wrong horse — which would be no help to American Legion prestige.

LIFE

Keen observers remark that — judging by Donald Rieberg's approach to Congress — the administration evidently wants the bill prolonging NRA to be couched in entirely new language. They call that sweet strategy — pointing out that if this is done the Supreme Court may well throw out all pending NRA cases on the ground that the law on which they are based has expired. This would mean at least a two-year lease on life for the revised setup before there was danger of a final showdown.

LAMENT

The reds are blue. A New York Communist leader privately laments the Party's lack of progress to friends. "If an election were held tomorrow I doubt if we'd poll $0.000 votes nationally. Conditions are bad enough to bring us recruits by the carload but the people we ought to get are falling for

Late News From Orange And Nearby Towns

WATER WORK IS DESCRIBED FOR SERVICE CLUB

ORANGE, March 16. — Harry Jenks, sanitary engineer of Berkeley, was the speaker at the meeting of the Orange Rotary club Thursday, explaining methods of water reclamation and water purification. Jenks invited members of the club to visit the small purification plant in West Santa Ana, where water from the outfall sewer is being purified.

Jenks stated that five million gallons of water are wasted in sewage daily and that in the course of a year this amounts to 5000 acre feet of water. Of water that flows through sewers less than two per cent is organic matter, Jenks declared, while 98.8 is water. Work of purifying water is done along lines established by nature, the engineer declared, but the process is speeded up.

Illustrating his talk with a number of slides in charge of R. D. Flaherty, executive secretary of the Orange County Farm bureau, Jenks told of water reclamation in European countries. Various methods of purification were described. One method, the speaker said, is to filter water through beds of coal or gravel; others are churning the water to oxidize it. Increasingly rapidly natural biological groups which destroy the organic matter.

By-products of water purification the speaker named as gas which may be used for operation of the power for the plants and sludge, which is converted into fertilizer.

C. H. Robinson presided and told of work being done by the club with boys of the Whittier State school. Carl Stueck, secretary of the club, told of a number of Orange county and Southern California boys who have been aided by Rotarians since leaving the school.

One of the swords, the boys claim, was found under a house in Santa Ana.

PAY-OFF
New York awards the palm for the goofiest idea of 1935 to a well known economist for his inspiration on how to keep Congress free from the influence of lobbyists. His suggestion is that any Congressman who is elected for a second time — he would exclude freshmen — should automatically be placed on the public payroll for life at full salary. The theory is that he would then have no monetary incentive for re-election and could feel free to let lobbyists to go jump in the Potomac. Comment runs that this would offer a perfect campaign argument for incumbent legislators. "Re-elect me — I'll be paid anyhow — and save yourselves $10,000 a year."

The three quoted paragraphs are lifted from a story by Jack James, who covers the doings of the Los Angeles ball club for the Herald-Express.

"There's one tall, gangling youngster, survivor of the scores of ambitious kids who reported to the Angels' manager this spring for a tryout, who is liable to stay right here with the Seraphs without being sent out for further development. Really, he looks like a find."

"Joe Mene is the boy in question. Plays right field, and how he can swing a bat! He has every veteran in the club singing his praises. Stands up at the plate and looks 'em over as though he'd been hitting against the best all his life. Just a natural hitter, with plenty of wrist and a free swing. And, when he connects, that ball travels! A left-hand hitter, yet hits 'em any place."

"Right now—and this is no idle jest, either—he'll make Clee Carlyle hustle to win the regular right field berth and Bob Leone step on it to keep his utility role. Unless he turns out to be a spring bloomer, this Mene will be a utility outfielder, and plenty useful in that role."

The Mene referred to is a young Frenchman from Anaheim with a lean and hungry look. Monsieur Mene is a product of the night ball pastimes of Orange county.

He broke in some years ago as a southpaw pitcher at Garden Grove. He moved from Garden Grove to Santa Ana, where he was employed as an outfielder. He soon was traded to Anaheim, subsequently chattered to Westminster.

In none of these sundry spots was Monsieur Mene a sensation. He was fast and occasionally hit tremendously long ball off the tee. Oldsters still talk about the time he made one night at the wheel, when the playing field was larger and larger and Mene hoisted the ball to the top of the ridge in night-center field.

But taken all in all, Joe was hardly a standout, and the last heard of him was when he let a grounder leak through his long legs and go for a home run, costing Westminster a ball game. He was released that very evening.

Now the ugly duckling of the bushes develops into the beautiful swan of the Angels, destined perhaps to achieve stardom.

his first year in organized baseball. What do you make of that, Philo?

Santa Ana Hi went through the rough and ready football campaigns of 1933 and 1934 with only one major injury. Ray Clark's broken ankle. Yet in the past three months two "touch football" players have taken the count in physical education classes. The first victim was Coach Bill Foote himself, who ruptured a tendon in his heel so severely his right foot was in a cast six weeks. The second was Keith Stewart, who will be on crutches two months or more with a broken leg.

What price "touch football"? SPORT TICKETTAPE: Rudy Holman, the Jaycee runner, changed his name from Rudy to escape the tag of alleged inefficiency. Harold Lewis and Frank Bettis, past presidents of the Santa Ana Tennis club, shelled $50 out of their pockets to promote the last open tournament here. Hurdler Roy Kirkpatrick wasn't all that El Centro lost from its track team. Coach Bob Armstrong also departed the valley.

"Bono" Koral says he'll go back to his best truck job unless the Angels send him to their Ponca City farm. He thinks progress will be too slow at Catalina. Miles Norton, Santa Ana Jaycee's all-conference tackle, is headed for S. C., but California still hopes to change his mind.

Spring practice has started at U. C. L. A. and "Tex" Harris, the end from Santa Ana, is technically ineligible. The high school eagerly awaits the arrival of Dalton Lutz of Willard and Byron Bates of Lathrop, junior high school kids who show unusual promise in track. Lutz is a sprinter, Bates a broad and high jumper.

Between the service clubs and the tennis players they've raised $160 of the $250 needed for lights on the Willard courts. "Arky" Vaughan is called "Arky" because he was born in Arkansas. Louie Novikov, Neva to you, is whistling so many line drives in the Hollywood training camp at Fullerton that he is reasonably sure to stick with the Shrikes. He was released by Hollywood, young Don Johnson of Laguna Beach has hooked on for a trial with Sacramento.

MEADOWS HANDICAP DATE AGAIN MAR. 23

SAN MATEO, —March 16.—(UP)—The Bay Meadows Jockey club made a supreme bid for public support of its spring meeting today by offering a program that included a $5000 handicap and three other feature races.

Top Row, fastest horse in the A. A. Baroni barn, was the favorite. Thomasville, Semanore, Slapped, Royal Blunder, Frank Orndoff and Toro Flight also were entered.

The track operators today switched back to March 23 the running of the $25,000 Bay Meadows Handicap in which Azucar, Ladysman, Head Play and other stars will compete.

PRIMO THROUGH AS CONTENDER?

DONS SET NEW RELAY RECORD TO WIN MEET

Establishing new all-time marks in the low hurdles and relay, Santa Ana's Dons set off to an auspicious start in Eastern Jaycee conference track by defeating Chaffey's Panthers, 69-62, in a hotly-contested dual meet here yesterday.

Victory depended on the outcome of the final event—the mile relay—which a Santa Ana combination of Ray Cokely, Ray Craft, Major Anderson and Frank Boyd won with a new record of 3 min. 31.4 secs. The old mark of 3:35 was set in 1927.

The Dons were clinging to a slim lead, 64-62, before the mile relay. In the deciding event, Cokely and Craft matched strides with Chaffey's first two laps, and Major Anderson received the baton on the third. He fell behind several yards but spurred on the home stretch to give Frank Boyd, anchor man, a two-yard advantage. Boyd completed with Lowell Jones, Chaffey's fastest quarter-miler, and ran approximately 50 flat to set the new relay record and ward off defeat.

Wilson Runs 24.8. Sophomore Lucian Wilson trimmed two-tenths of a second off the Don high hurdles record of 25 flat. Spirited competition from Santa Ana's Vanduff, teammate, produced the 24.8 mark. Wilson further established himself as the best hurdler in Southland Jaycee track by annexing the highs in 15.2.

Rudy Holman, Santa Ana's ace two-miler, was an unexpected starter in the mile run, and negotiated the four laps in 4 min. 35.8 seconds, just short of Bob Vander's 1926 mark of 4:34.7. Holman already holds the two-mile record of 10:12. He later entered the eight-lap grind and ran second to Joe Fisher, an improved Don who finished in 10 min. 20.5 seconds. Holman and Noel Brown, Chaffey Negro, engaged in a sensational 300-yard sprint for second place, Holman winning by inches.

Vernon Koepel and Ray Cokely were pleasant surprises to Coach Bill Cook, Koepel won the 100 in 10.8 and the 220 in 22.9. Cokely placed in the 440, shot and discus, and ran a fine lap on the relay team.

Clean Sweeps Help Dons. Disqualification of Al Parr in the broad jump and Frank Kroener in the shot, and the temporary ineligibility of Walt Gunther, 120-foot discus man, were offset only by clean sweeps in the 100 and low hurdles.

Citrus comes here next week for Santa Ana's second league test. The summary: 100-yard dash—Won by Koepel (SA), Wilson (SA) second, Boyd (SA) third. Time, 10.3 sec. 220-yard dash—Won by Koepel (SA), Fisher (SA) second, Parr (SA) third. Time, 22.9 sec. 440-yard dash—Won by Jones (C), Fisher (SA) second, Foster (SA) third. CANZONERI-AMBERS CONTEST PROPOSED

CHICAGO, March 16.—(UP)—Promoters Nate Lewis and Jim Mullen announced definite plans today to match Tony Canzoneri, New York Italian who once was the best in the world in three boxing divisions, with Lou Ambers of Herkimer, N. Y., to qualify a challenger for Barney Ross' lightweight title.

Canzoneri boxed out a 10-round victory last night over "Chuck" Woods of Detroit, advancing another step up the comeback trail to the titles he lost.

PARIS, March 16.—(UP)—Announcement that Fred Perry, England's Davis Cup star and world's outstanding singles player, would turn professional, was expected in tennis circles today.

Christine Williams, Stanford co-ed, will wed Bobby Grayson, All-American fullback and spark-plug of the Pacific Coast football champions. Bobby's from Portland, Ore., and Miss Williams is from Honolulu, where her father is an Army officer.

'BRING ON THIS LOUIS' SPORTS IRRITATED BAER

SACRAMENTO, March 16.—(UP)—Joe Louis, ambitious young Negro heavyweight, will think a battletide is using him for target practice if he tangles with Max Baer, the champion modestly promised today.

An outburst from Baer was incited by reports from Detroit that Louis figured he could defeat the champion, either by the knockout route or by decision in 15 rounds.

"Bring on that fellow," Baer snorted. "I'll drape him over those chairs in Row G. I have him licked now and he knows it. He was in my dressing room at Boston and I was showing him some tricks. He was so scared of me then he could not look me in the eye. When I start whistling punches at him he'll think a battletide is using him for target practice."

Amel Hoffman, manager of the playboy champion, was pleased with the exchange of verbal blows, and said he hoped they would continue.

This would be a great buildup for a fight," he said. "I'm getting hot now for a match. There is no such thing as a color-line for us. If Louis continues sounding off, he will build us a $1,000,000 gate."

GLENDALE WINS BUT HAWKINS, STAFFORD STAR

Unless San Diego stops 'em next week, Glendale's Dynamiters are a lead-pipe cinch to win the track championship of the Coast Preparatory league.

Already past Pasadena, the powerful Glendale team added Santa Ana's Saints to its casualty list at Glendale yesterday, 69 to 44. A preponderance of second place strength decided the contest, Santa Ana being limited to two "place" tickets as against Glendale's eight.

Coach Reese ("Pink") Greene said he was well satisfied with the Saints' showing, however. He had set 40 points as his team's goal. Furthermore, several Santa Anas gave fine performances. Bill Hawkins won the high hurdles in the brilliant early season time of 15.4 seconds, the best turned in by a Southland prep runner this year. Hawkins came back later in the afternoon with a 26-second flight of low hurdles, closely pursued by his teammate, Bob Reil.

The sophomore pole vaulter, Len Stafford, cleared 12 feet after tying with Erwin Youel for first place at 11 feet. Stafford's effort equaled the all-time Santa Ana record made by Al Reboin in '29 and '30. Greene has now set 12:6 as Stafford's seasonal goal.

Another surprise exhibition came from 190-pound Fred Titensor, making his first start in the 440. Titensor out-finished Young of Glendale in 53.7 seconds, with Harold Eastham of the Saints third.

Glendale cleaned house in both sprints, Chase and Murillo running one-two, and took the half with MacRae doing 2:7. Santa Ana's Oswald Jones, a sophomore, finished a close second, indicating good possibilities. Coach Greene also praised the running of Miller Ines Granados, who placed third but was clocked under 5 minutes.

Glendale scored heavily in the weights, but the Saints recovered some of the ground when Cameron Gillis did 20:9 to win the broad jump and Mercurio tied two Glendale high-jumpers at 5:8.

The next Santa Ana meet will be a Class B and C inter-class affair at Poly field Tuesday. The "A" team faces Alhambra here Thursday, goes to Huntington Beach next Saturday for the Southern Counties Invitational.

The results: 100-yard dash—Chase (G) first; Murillo (G) second; DeSmet (SA) third. Time, 10.1 sec. 220-yard dash—Murillo (G) first; Chase (G) second; Matzen (SA) third. Time, 22.2 sec. 440-yard dash—F. Titensor (SA) first; Young (G) second; Eastham (SA) third. Time, 53.7 sec. 880-yard run—MacRae (G) first; O. Jones (SA) second; Beard (SA) third. Time, 2 min. 9 sec. Mile run—Miller (G) first; Carr (G) second; Granados (SA) third. California Stops Trojan Nine, 5-1

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—(UP)—The University of California took U. S. C.'s baseball team into camp here yesterday, 5 to 1.

The Bears scored five times in the seventh, bunching four hits off Joe Gonzales. Thompson, Bear captain and third baseman, clouted a homer and a triple.

Coach Jones Benches Cream Puff Blockers

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—(UP)—One hundred and five thousand vacant seats and 60 boys sweating and straining down below on the Coliseum gridiron.

Howard Jones, nearing his 50th birthday, watching every move, correcting, criticizing and commenting on every play. Bloody noses, bruised bodies, lame legs.

HOLLYWOOD TO PLAY ORNDORFF TEAM SUNDAY

Joe Orndorff's All-Stars play the Hollywood Stars at Fullerton tomorrow in a contest substituted for the Hollywood-Joe E. Brown game.

The movie company is so far behind schedule in shooting Brown's new comedy, "Alibi Ike," that most of the players are due for a full day's work in the studios Sunday.

Orndorff, former Coast and major leaguer, says he will bring to Fullerton a club of erstwhile professional players. Manager Frank Shellenback will use Hollywood's rookies against them. Game-time is 2:15.

Hollywood's regulars go to San Bernardino Monday for an exhibition tussle with the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Bucs are tentatively scheduled to return the call later in the spring by playing at Fullerton and giving the natives a peek at their own home-town boys, Floyd Vaughan, Pittsburgh's star shortstop.

Frank Shellenback makes his Weigley field debut as a manager next Wednesday and Thursday, leading Hollywood against the Chicago White Sox.

With Joe Brown's movie machines grinding all the time, Hollywood's regulars and wannabes, known as the "Yankees" and "Cubs," respectively, played a seven-inning exhibition yesterday. The "Yankees" won, 7-6.

WILKINS TO PITCH SAINT-BREA TISSLE

Jim Wilkins, lean right-hander, probably will hurl for Santa Ana at Poly field Monday, when Clyde Cook's Saints face Brea-Olinda for the second time this season.

Willie Jones, No. 1 pitcher, already has received a test from Brea, and won 3-0. He was slated to work against the Herbert Hoover nine at San Diego. Jones probably will pitch at Brea next Tuesday in a return engagement. Wilkins then would draw the assignment against Woodrow Wilson at Long Beach Wednesday, and Jones would work the Fullerton game Friday.

Brea will oppose Santa Ana's regular lineup here Monday. Duane Teel will catch with Jack McClure at first, Ray Short at second, Bob Wilde at short, and Harold Jesse at third. Joe Kadowaki, Paul Bingle and Art Nieblas will patrol the outer grounds.

Hitoshi Nitta, letterman who has been confined to his home with pneumonia since early February, will return to school Monday.

CUNNINGHAM RACES 'CHUCK' HORNOSTEL

KMj will broadcast the Columbia Mile at 7:30 p. m.

NEW YORK, March 16.—(UP)—The indoor track and field season will come to a close in Madison Square Garden tonight, with at least three outstanding features on the annual K. of C. program.

The 1000-yard race between Glenn Cunningham of Kansas, greatest miler of all time, and "Chuck" Hornostel of Indiana, will be the headline event. Cunningham then will try to beat Gene Venzke of Pennsylvania and a crack field in a mile race and Hornostel will meet the best at 600 yards.

PREDICT DEFEAT FOR EX-CHAMP IN NEXT START

NEW YORK, March 16.—(UP)—On April 5 Primo Carnera will meet the winner of next week's 15-round bout between James J. Braddock and Art Laaky, and probably will be eliminated for all time from championship consideration, notwithstanding a nine-round technical knockout he holds today over Ray Impletter.

Either Braddock or Laaky, depending on who wins next week, probably will be a top-heavy favorite to defeat Carnera. The former champion failed to impress 18,000 spectators in Madison Square Garden who paid $4,000 to see the fight last night.

ZONING PLANS OUTLINED FOR COAST GROUP

LAGUNA BEACH, March 16.—A group of representative south coast business men gathered at Bird's cafe Thursday night to listen to L. Deming Tilton, chairman of the state planning commission for San Diego, Orange and Santa Barbara counties, explain in detail the proposed zoning ordinance for Orange county. Dr. W. L. Bigham, of Anaheim, was chairman for the evening.

Tilton brought with him two maps to illustrate his talk, one showing the usage of land in every section of Orange county, the other being a zoning study of the Three Arches district. He presented all present with drafts of an ordinance establishing land classifications and districts within the unincorporated territory of Orange county and explained at length the plan proposed.

The plan proposed classifies 11 types of districts and can be developed to fit the various districts along the coast, he said. Following Tilton's talk, a general discussion took place.

SILKEN SPINDLES

words of the tune Millie was playing: "Sweetie Pie—Little bit good and little bit naughty. Little bit proud and little bit naughty—"

Someone caught the megaphone and the crooner tried to recapture it. There was a scuffle, and in loud laughter, Gale, dancing with Steve, asked, "What's going on?"

"Nothing," Steve said. "Just Ted Frisbie clowning around the way he always does."

A couple danced toward them and the girl raised her hand from her partner's shoulder, waved. It was Josie and a ruddy faced youth with small, good natured eyes. Josie was wearing the brown dress with the new plaid collar. She called out, "Where've you been?"

"I've been looking for you all evening."

"We only came a little while ago," Gale told her.

"Some dance, isn't it?" Josie grinned. "Everybody's here."

Others dancers came between them, separating them. Katie Schantz and her young husband passed, looking so happy that Gale smiled. Katie saw her and smiled back.

Gale started to say, "Steve, I think—", but a black-eyed youth with dark hair plastered back severely, cut in and took her away so that she could not finish the sentence.

The black haired youth was a better dancer than Steve, who knew two or three simple steps and never varied them. Gale and her new partner circled the floor twice before the music stopped.

"Say, you can dance!" the dark youth said, clapping vigorously for an encore.

"Not very well," Gale told him. "I don't dance often enough. But you're an expert."

The clapping subsided. There was not, apparently, to be an encore. The young man asked, "How about something to drink? There's a place across the street—"

"No, thanks," Gale had halted, was looking across the room. "I think I see my brother," she went on. "If you'll excuse me—"

She crossed the room to where Phil was talking earnestly to the girl beside him—Ruby Griffith wearing a bright green, sleeveless dress and shimmering green earrings. Phil didn't notice Gale as she came toward him. He didn't see her until she touched his arm.

Then he swung around and said quickly, "Oh—hello."

"Hello," Gale included the other girl in her greeting. "I didn't know you were coming to the dance tonight, Phil. Why didn't you tell me?"

Phil's face was flushed and his words were not as distinct as they should have been. "Didn't know it myself," he said. "Decided—spur of the moment. Why didn't you tell me you were coming?"

"But I did. Don't you remember?"

"Must be mistaken. Must have been two other fellows!" Phil laughed and Ruby joined in as though the words were some hilarious jest.

"Honest, Phil," she said, "you're a scream. Isn't he though?" She turned to Gale. "Isn't he just the limit?"

"I don't think so," Gale told her. "I think—"

"Aw, now, Gale, don't be a wet blanket!"

"I'm not, Phil. Really, I'm not."

"Hello," Ruby Griffith said, her eyes on Steve's. "I'm surprised to see you here."

"Why?"

"Oh, just surprised, that's all." Ruby glanced down at the toe of her high heeled green sandal, then looked up again. She was smiling—that smile that seemed to indicate she knew something very amusing which was keeping to herself.

Mattie Saunders' fingers crashed down on the battered piano keys once more and Tony's accordion caught the melody. Steve said to Ruby, "Dance this one with me?"

"I'm sorry, I can't," she went on, drawing the words. "I'm awfully sorry." Gale, watching her, understood why Ruby, who wasn't really a pretty girl, invariably had admirers.

Gale supposed it was Phil whom Ruby had promised to dance with, but instead, a squarely built, bulky figure loomed beside her. Ed Vogel said, "Come on, Ruby," and the girl stepped into his arms. They danced away together, Ruby looking back, smiling, over his shoulder.

"Want to dance?" Steve asked. Gale said, "I'd rather not. Don't you think it's awfully warm in here? Is there any place where the air isn't so stuffy?"

"Let's take a look," Steve said. He led the way to a smaller room at the front of the building, a sort of entrance. It was deserted.

Now, a single globe hung from the ceiling, lighting the room rather dimly. At one side there was a counter where occasionally soft drinks were sold. The wall behind it was decorated with calendars and window cards advertising various beverages. But there was nothing for sale tonight.

Steve said, "Like this better? It's cooler, anyhow."

"Much better," Gale agreed. "I'll get some chairs—"

Gale stepped him. "Don't bother," she said. "Look, we can sit here." She swung herself up to the broad ledge of the window. Steve took his place beside her. The music, coming from a distance, sounded less strident. Steve, looking down at the girl, hummed the melody softly. He said, slipping his hand over hers, "Well, have you been having a good time?"

Gale nodded, smiling.

They were silent a few moments. Then Steve went on, "You look awfully pretty tonight, Gale. Did you know that? You're the prettiest girl here."

"Silly!"

"But it's true. There isn't one of them who can compare with you for looks. Not one."

Now was the time, Gale thought, to tell him what she had made up her mind to say. She had tried to say it earlier in the evening, had put it off. But there was no use delaying any longer. Steve had been so patient, waiting for her answer. He had given himself over and over again, his fine qualities, his devotion. And Steve was the man she was going to marry.

Her fingers clasped in his, tightened. Gale said, almost in a whisper, "Do you remember—?"

Almost as she spoke the last notes of the dance tune ended and the shuffling feet came to a halt. There was a buzz of voices from the room within, a buzz that grew louder. Suddenly a single voice rang out, shrill, high pitched. A man's voice, angry, defiant.

Gale sprang to her feet. The color came from her face. "It's Phil!" she said.

Phil Henderson's voice rose again from the room beyond. "Let 'em try to stop me!" he shouted. "Just let 'em try it!"

Gale caught Steve's arm. "We've got to do something!" she said. "Oh, Steve!"

Without waiting, she ran into the dance hall.

BOOK REVIEWS

BY MARY BURKE KING

Delay in the Sun by Anthony Thorne. "Delay in the Sun" is a story of group of English people who were en route from Santiago to Coruna, or points beyond, in a motor bus which stops at a town called Querinda at which point the motor service is tied up by a strike for several days. The story is about the changes that the lives and relationships of the group of people, in practically every case the resulting change is too profound to be realistic. One Jew drummer who had not had the remotest idea of marrying a fellow passenger, or anyone else for that matter, becomes engaged. The situation is equally astonishing to the fiancée. A pair of lovers become estranged and leave Querinda on separate ways. A dilettante and an artist, congenial traveling companions, also separate at Querinda, the one journeying on, the other staying to enjoy the favors of a maid.

The book is of the pattern of "Grand Hotel" but much lighter in tone. It has, to particularly recommend it as an excellent descriptive background of the town of Querinda, a typical Spanish village. One actually feels the heat of the little sun in the little town, and hears the musical murmur of the fountain.

The Permanent Horizon by Ludwig Lewisohn, published by Harpers. "The Permanent Horizon" has the enlightening subtitle "A New Search for Old Truths." Mr. Lewisohn looks upon the present-day civilized world and sees it in danger of being torn asunder by new fanaticisms. These fanaticisms, both of the Right and the Left, fail to take into account many decisive facts of human nature to which he points.

It was a fortunate circumstance which brought about the reading of this book and Erasmus the same week. "Erasmus" stimulates constructive thinking and "The Permanent Horizon" brings us to more specific analysis of our own age. The book is a glorification of the bourgeois type. All over the world the middle class is not only impoverished, but shell-shocked, says the author. It has lost inner vitality and belief in itself. This book should restore a considerable measure of the self-respect and self-confidence of the middle class, which Mr. Lewisohn believes is an act of salvation for our bourgeois. The man who has been cotten the men and women, who despite the ravages of the oligarchs and the lag of the blind mass, have created civilization. . . . The bourgeois . . . must take heart even amid the delusions and catastrophes of this time. He has his permanent function to exercise, his permanent duty to perform. For he is, by virtue of his disinterestedness, not only the true conservative, he, that is, who seeks to conserve the eternal goods of mankind, but also the true protestant and revolutionary of the ages.

Perhaps it is just as well for our mental stimulation that Mr. Lewisohn does not have a style which lulls. It is a bit of work to read this book, but most profitable work and in the end very enjoyable. Love, religion, progress, art, culture for the subject discussed in the book. It is a refreshingly sane mind in a rather mad world.

Erasmus of Rotterdam by Stefan Zweig, published by The Viking Press. Why the reviving of an interest in Erasmus just at this time? Because "Erasmus" collected the materials of a legacy which was nothing other than the ancient dream of every religion, of every myth, the dream of a coming and irresistible humanization of mankind, of a triumph of the unclouded and just-minded reason over selfish and ephemeral passions. . . . Though his hand was unsure and often hesitant, Erasmus was the first to give this ideal a practical shape, and this ideal has been looked up to with hope renewed by all the generations of Europeans which have arisen since his day. . . . It is to him we owe this simplest of thoughts, and this most undying of thoughts, namely, that it is mankind's highest duty to seek to become humaner, more spiritual, and increasingly capable of sympathetic, of spiritual, understanding. . . . A part of the world is more alive to Erasmus today than for generations and the forces opposed are more determined in their opposition.

Bitterly real is the Erasmus this author presents to us. He

KISS YOUR LOVER—AND DREAM

Do not miss laughter under the lush fragrance of lilacs in heart-breaking Spring. Or kisses of lovers thrown on the bush.

Of air that is as soft as a humming bird-wing.

This is enchantment—foolish one drink. Though he will forget the red curve of your mouth. And while the bright coils of your memory clink. His vows will be birds flying far to the south.

This is enchantment. Look in the pool. Of years where you fathom one reckless gleam. For it pays in April to be a fool. Kiss your lover—and dream!

—Poetry World.

DAUGHTER-IN-LAW (Venture in Mind Reading) While others praise your fruited trees. The shrubs so neatly trimmed and pruned. And eat of trite immediacies. I stand there utterly marooned.

For me there lies an icy moat. Around the family house you prize. And where the mirrored shadows float. I glimpse my failure through your eyes.

Though I would reach my hand to clasp. Your own in sympathy and trust. You still elude my prairie grasp. And leave my faith to rust. —The Spinners.

Secrets of the wild things of the great American forests and animal scenes never before witnessed by human beings will be seen in the great picture, "Sequoia," heralded as a startlingly different picture, which will open at the West Coast theater on March 29, Manager Lester J. Fountain announced today.

Struggles to the death between male deer during mating moon, the unceasing warfare of mountain lions and other wild animals have been captured by the camera after one of the most unusual series of expeditions in the history of motion pictures.

Jean Parker, Russell Hardie, Samuel S. Hinds, Paul Hurst, Ben Hall and others are prominently cast.

This is enchantment. Look in the pool. Of years where you fathom one reckless gleam. For it pays in April to be a fool. Kiss your lover—and dream!

LANNY ROSS IN TENSE DRAMA. MUSICAL FILM ROMANCE HERE AT WALKER'S ON WEDNESDAY

A man who kills another in defense of a woman serves a sentence for manslaughter and when on parole vows he is through with women forever, is the central male character in Dashiell Hammett's gripping drama, "Woman in the Dark," which will open at the West Coast theater Wednesday for a three-day engagement with a second feature, "Lottery Lover," a gay romance of the Paris boulevards, it was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Ralph Bellamy has the role of the man who claims women spell nothing but trouble in "Woman in the Dark." Barely out of jail, he faces a situation which is almost identical with that which sent him there. What happens when a woman out of the dark appeals to his chivalry to protect her from the dramatic situation in this screen play by the author of "The Thin Man."

Fay Wray plays the part of the girl in "Woman in the Dark," who throws herself upon Bellamy's generosity. Melvyn Douglas is his usual suave self as the man who forces Bellamy's hand. Roscoe Ates stutters his way through the part of Bellamy's comic pal.

"Lottery Lover" tells the light-hearted story of a girl shy cadet who won the right to woo a glamorous darling of the Paris stage. Lew Ayres and "Pat" Patterson have the leading roles, and others in the cast include Alan Dinehart, Sterling Holloway, Eddie Nugent, Nick Foran and Reginald Denny.

Selected short subjects will include a cartoon, "Trapeze Artist," and World News events.

MUSIC COMEDY AND SEA DRAMA END RUN

A hitting musical comedy with the singing stars, Carl Brisson and Mary Ellis in the leading romantic roles, "All the King's Horses," and a quaint and dramatic tale of life on Cape Cod, "Captain Hurricane," play for the last times at the Broadway theater tonight.

Edward Everett Horton, popular comedian, with Katherine Milne and Eugene Pallette, are featured in "All the King's Horses," a melodramatic comedy which concerns what happens in a royal household when the king leaves for a lively time in Vienna, leaving behind him a double who is mistaken for his majesty.

James Barton, Helen Westley, Helen Mack and Gene Lockhart have the leading roles in "Captain Hurricane," a story of a sea captain who spent most of his life trying to learn to control his temper so he could win his heart's choice.

UNIQUE ROMANCE. COMEDY END RUN

More thrills and unique situations are packed in "Living on Velvet," which features Kay Francis, Warren William and George Brent, than in most pictures which have shown here for some time, according to those who have seen it. The film plays for the last times at the West Coast theater to-night with a second feature, "Lightning Strikes Twice," which it is said provides a storm of laughs.

There are unusual air maneuvers in "Living on Velvet," with some of the maddest stunts imaginable by an airplane pilot who plays the role of an aviator supposed to be somewhat "cracked" after a terrific accident in which he is the only one who escapes alive.

"Lightning Strikes Twice" is a merry story in which romance is nearly wrecked by diverting complications resulting from mistaken identities, the antics of trapped policemen and other hilarious situations. Ben Lyon, Thelma Todd, Pert Kelton, Laura Hope Crews and others are featured.

MONTGOMERY-THREE STARS HARDING FILM IN BROADWAY AT WEST COAST FILM SUNDAY

In a screen play admirably suited to their talents, Ann Harding and Robert Montgomery are again seen together in "Biography of a Bachelor Girl," which opens a three-day engagement at the West Coast theater tomorrow with a second feature, "Red Hot Tires," a new melodramatic thriller of the automobile race tracks. Manager Lester J. Fountain announced today.

The story in "Biography of a Bachelor Girl" humorously treats a worldly young woman trying to decide, between the pleas of her admirer and the threats of her ex-admirers, whether or not to write the story of her life.

"Biography of a Bachelor Girl" includes Edward Everett Horton, who appears as the comical stuffed shirt; Nolan, in the screen version of the famous stage play, "Biography," Edward Arnold brings all his well known charm to the role of the Austrian composer, Una Merkel, as Slade, finds time between cocktails for love.

"Red Hot Tires" is filled with breath taking action and death defying stunts performed by a score of nationally famous racing drivers, although several of the cast participate in the races.

Lyle Talbot, Mary Astor, Gavin Gordon, Roscoe Karns, Frankie Darro, Mary Treen, Henry Kolker and others have noteworthy parts.

Short subjects include "Buddy's Pony Express," a Buddy cartoon, and World News events.

BILL MYSTERY. "NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS"

What would happen if a scientist had the power to turn human beings into statues and vice versa? What does happen forms the basis for perhaps the most novel film to yet come out of Hollywood, "Night Life of the Gods," which will open at the Broadway theater for three days on next Thursday with a second feature, "While the Patient Slept," the second mystery thriller selection of the Clue club.

Alan Mowbray enacts the role of a scientist who discovers a formula for petrifying humans and animating stone images. First he turns his nagging family into a row of statues and sets them out in the garden, evening old scores. Then he goes to the art museum, revives the old pagan gods and the fun begins. Among the players in the film are Florine McKinney, Henry Armetta, William Boyd, Peggy Shannon, Douglas Fowley and others.

Aline MacMahon and Guy Kibbee are cast in entirely different roles than usual in "While the Patient Slept," a baffling murder mystery drama. Aline MacMahon is cast as a nurse and Kibbee as a small town sleuth. While the plot concerns a double murder, the picture also contains much rare humor, advance notices say.

A romance occurs between Lyle Talbot and Patricia Ellis.

Shorts subjects will include a Terrytoon cartoon, "The Bull Fight," and Register World News events.

Three outstanding figures of the screen, stage and vaudeville are brought together in "The Little Colonel," which opens an engagement of four days at the Broadway theater tomorrow, according to Manager Lester J. Fountain.

They are Shirley Temple, Lionel Barrymore and Bill Robinson. Shirley Temple has scaled to stardom and now ranks among the 10 best box office stars. Co-starring with Shirley is Lionel Barrymore, regarded as the screen's leading character actor. Bill Robinson has a niche for himself as the originator of the inimitable stair dance.

"Little Colonel," from the pen of Annie Fellows Johnston, has been read in book form by millions. It is the tale of a Kentucky rebel who didn't know the Civil War was over. He banishes his daughter when she weds a Yankee. The disinherited daughter goes to the Indian frontier with her husband where their daughter becomes the honorary colonel of a regiment. Later, in the duel of a golden-locked colonel "F. Five," and a crusty colonel of "F. Five," the youngster sends her battery of charm against the olderster. Others in the cast are Evelyn Venable, John Lodge and Sidney Blackmer. Part of the film is in Technicolor.

Momentum Given Plans
For Junior Ebell
Fashion Revue

Present interest of Junior Ebell members is centered in their annual spring fashion revue and bridge tea, and the date of April 8 is being awaited with special anticipation by both General and Junior Ebell societies and their friends.

Mrs. Burt Frederick Zaiser, appointed by Mrs. Don Park, president, as chairman of the committee in charge, already has many details of the affair worked out, and has delegated definite duties to her efficient co-workers.

Much the same general plan as has prevailed at previous revues and teas, will be adopted, and co-operation of merchants in displaying smart modes of the season, is being extended. To Mrs. Gail Jordan has been delegated the responsibility of selecting the group who will model the gowns and costumes in the glorified pre-Easter parade.

The party, beginning at 2 o'clock, will be staged in Ebell peacock room, where bridge players will have a view of the costumes as the models appear on the stage and then traverse the length of the room. Decorations will be in charge of Mrs. George Walker, while incidental music will be planned by Miss Helen Glancy.

Table appointments will be arranged by Mrs. George Bradley, while other details closely associated with tables, will include the tea menu supervised by Mrs. Rose Comblin and bridge prizes in charge of Mrs. John Ebersole. Home-made candy, always a popular feature of the annual events, will be on sale with Miss Frances Bowman and her committee in charge.

Others whose work is of great value in planning for the ultimate success of the afternoon, include Mrs. Robert Guild, head of the ticket committee, who is disposing of dozens of the necessary little pastebords well in advance of the date, and Mrs. Kemper Taylor who has assumed responsibility for publicity for the event. Mrs. Zaiser stresses the importance of the society's welfare fund, which will be augmented by proceeds from the young women of Junior Ebell to carry on a remarkable program of work in the county baby clinic and similar important activities.

Musical Arts Members
Are Entertained by Piano Program

One of Musical Arts club's own members, Mrs. Raymond Warren of Orange, presented yesterday's program for that group, meeting in James' gold room for the customary fortnightly luncheon.

Mrs. W. B. Snow occupied her post as president, and made several announcements of events to come. Clarence Gustlin, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Warren, whose piano numbers were well chosen to show her artistic ability. Among the most enjoyable of the selections were Brahms' "Intermezzo, Opus 117, No. 1; "Ritardando" by MacDowell, and "Marionette Show" by Goossens.

At their meeting of April 5, Musical Arts members will depart from their usual custom of luncheon in James' cafe and instead will have an informal studio luncheon in Earl Fraser's studio, Greenleaf building. This will complement the guest artist of the day, Miss Beulah May, whose appearance before the group has been postponed until that date.

Miss May's new book of poems, "Buccaneer's Gold," will be off the Junior College Fine Arts press before that date, and offer club members opportunity to familiarize themselves with its contents before her introduction to talk upon "Modern Poetry."

Irish Southerners Are Discussed At U. D. C.
Chapter Meeting

The prominent place given those of Irish ancestry in the history and development of the south, was stressed yesterday in a talk given by Mrs. M. C. Maloney before members of Emma Sanson chapter, U.D.C., in their monthly meeting, held with Mrs. W. L. Dugan, 222 South Sycamore street.

Mrs. Dugan, Mrs. C. E. Price (chapter president), Mrs. L. A. Mayfield and Mrs. E. A. Cox comprised the hostess group receiving members and guests. The home suggested St. Patrick's Day with its flower decorations in white and green.

Mrs. Price conducted the usual business meeting during which Mrs. M. C. Maloney and Mrs. George Wells were named delegates, and Mrs. J. K. Norton and Miss Gertrude Montgomery, alternates, to the state U. D. C. convention to be held in Berkeley in May.

"Irish Southerners" was the subject assigned Mrs. Maloney for her talk, in which she brought out the fact that 40 per cent of the early population of the United States came from Ireland. In the South, all life and traditions were conducive to developing natural traits in statesmanship and the arts, and she cited many famous men whose ancestry was pure Southern Irish. These included President James K. Polk, President Woodrow Wilson and President Theodore Roosevelt among statesmen. Father Ryan was a well-known poet of whom she spoke, reading several of his charming poems. Other writers and artists of pure Irish descent were included on her list of interesting people.

Miss Georgia Belle Walton with Russell Rowland at the piano, played two violin solos, "Serenade" by Rachmaninoff and "Air for the G string" by Bach. Appreciation of her artistry was so marked that she played an encore number, "Some My Mother Taught Me" (Kreisler arrangement).

As a conclusion to the afternoon the hostesses served an elaborate two-course tea menu, maintaining the green and white color scheme in its various details.

CAPIES GIVE GRACE TO YOUNG GIRLS

PATTERN 2203

BY ANNE ADAMS

Capies that cap the shoulders have a bewitching way with young girls. They give grace — ease — freedom — and a smart spring silhouette! This delightful model, with its smart seams down the front, is perfectly captivating in print — be it silk or cotton. It is also good in navy blue crepe or a lighter blue or beige with bright buttons. As there are no sleeves to cause the slightest difficulty in sewing, it's a frock girls, themselves, may make with little effort by the simple instructor included with the pattern. A model that is becoming and practical for wear now and right on through the summer.

Pattern 2203 is available in sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 12 takes 3-4 yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions include: 1. Creamy and rich looking but actually a fat-saver.

Use lean boneless beef for the stew. Braze it well, add only a little water to cook it, season with all the things you like and add cubed vegetables — carrots, turnips, celery, and small onions — when the stew shows signs of getting tender.

Three sections of canned grapefruit on lettuce make the diet salad.

Add to this menu, potatoes or noodles for the stew, bread or rolls, and a dessert, and the family dinner is ready, too.

Speaking of diets, the Eat and Grow Slim daily menus are not designed for fast reduction of weight, they simply keep weight down after reduction has taken place. For quick results send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a copy of the SAFE AND SANE REDUCTION DIET will be sent by return mail. You may have a big Calory List, in same envelope, by exchanging a copy of one of your favorite recipes.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Lemon Foam With Custard Sauce

2 cups water

Juice of 2 lemons

2-3 cup sugar

Pinch of salt

2 egg whites whipped

2 cups cream, confectioners.

Bring water to a boil, add lemon juice and grated rind of one lemon with sugar and pinch of salt.

Dissolve corn starch in 2 Tbsps. cold water. Stir until cooked to a smooth sauce and then cook for 20 minutes at a simmer. Cool partially before whipping in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pile in bowl, chill and serve with a custard sauce, made from the egg yolks cooked with 1 cup rich milk, 1-2 cup sugar and 1 tsp. vanilla, in a double boiler. Whip before using.

This dessert serves 8. The calories per serving total close to 180 each. The sugar, an energy food, steps up the calory total.

Frozen Prune-Walnut Souffle

1 cup cooked chopped prune pulp

12 walnut meats, sliced

Juice of 1 lemon

1 Tbsp. powdered cocoa

1 package ice cream mix powder

Prune juice to mix powder

1 stiffly whipped egg white

1 cup coffee cream whipped stiff

Few drops, each, vanilla and almond extracts.

Sweeten the cooking prunes, cool, stone and chop the required amount. Mix ice cream powder with prune juice instead of milk.

Add lemon juice, prune pulp and sliced nuts together with dry cocoa. Stir well, fold in the whipped egg white and flavoring extracts, then the cream, whipped to a stiff froth. Freeze without stirring, and not too hard, for this is a souffle texture, not an ice cream.

Serve 2 Tbsps. (heaping) in sherbet glasses. The recipe serves 10.

Au revoir until Monday.

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Dinner

Small fruit cocktail (2 Tbsps.)

1 cup split pea soup

Small serving of beef stew with vegetables

Canned grapefruit salad with diet French dressing

Black coffee or clear tea, without sugar.

Calory total, 500.

Split pea soup doesn't always need soup stock for the making; simply boil the peas (1 cup) in water until cooked to a mush, then add seasonings and part of a can of tomato soup with more hot water. Put a small spoonful of life cream in each soup cup before pouring in the hot soup.

Just another way to fool 'em and make them like it! Creamy and rich looking but actually a fat-saver.

Use lean boneless beef for the stew. Braze it well, add only a little water to cook it, season with all the things you like and add cubed vegetables — carrots, turnips, celery, and small onions — when the stew shows signs of getting tender.

Three sections of canned grapefruit on lettuce make the diet salad.

Economics And Religion To Be Lecture Topic

The Free Church Fellowship lectures by the Rev. Julia N. Budlong, which started several weeks ago at the Unitarian church, Eighth and Bush streets, will continue tomorrow evening, with the second address of a series of three devoted to a consideration of "What Modern Scholarship Contributes to Religion."

Tomorrow's subject will be "The Contribution of Economics to Religion."

Discussing this theme today, the Rev. Miss Budlong said:

"Economics is as new a study as is the machine, which first brought its importance to light. We are discovering that the laws of democracy, justice, prosperity and Christianity all coincide."

Peter Delivered From Prison

Text: Acts 12:1-7
The international uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 17.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

Peter was in prison. Prisons have had a fashion in history of confining the very bad and the very good.

Someone has said that mankind in its progress throws out a vanguard and a rear guard, and though the vanguard is very different from the rear guard it suffers frequently as much from the misunderstanding, hostility, and persecution of those in the main body, who will not tolerate either the prophet, who is in advance of society, or the criminal, who hinders society from the rear.

One would think that each age would learn from the mistakes of preceding ages and rectify these things, but the age old process goes on.

Within our own generation there have been in American prisons and penitentiaries men whose only fault was the intensity of their conscientious objection to war and killing. The fact that many of these have said, as Peter did, "We ought to obey God rather than men," has made no difference.

Society is still intolerant of its saints and its prophets, especially whenever they dare in any way to challenge the existing order, or the policy and acts of a nation in a particular circumstance.

There are angels who visit saints and prophets in prison. How else could they survive and continue their work in the world?

There is a strength and power of persistency in men of truth and right that gives them a strange power to triumph over all manner of persecution. The angel may not always be materialized, chains may not be cast off as miraculously as in the case of Peter, but the reality goes on.

The lesson is given as an example of the "Power of United Prayer" (topic for young people and adults) or of "How Prayer Helps" (intermediate and senior topic). As such it needs judicious exposition.

It can be given a somewhat materialistic exposition and application hardly in harmony with facts of present-day experience. There may, of course, always be in our minds the consciousness that prayer might accomplish a great deal more than we realize if our faith and our trust in God's power were deeper and more persistent.

Nevertheless to suggest that materialistic deliverance from imprisonment and bonds will always come in answer to prayer would be to miss the real point and truth of the lesson.

The important thing is that Peter was profoundly devoted to the truth of God. He cared far more about being faithful to his mission than about whether he remained in prison or was released from prison.

We are never in a position to experience all that God's power may achieve until he have that sublime devotion to duty, that we concern about what may happen to ourselves, as long as we have the strength and the will to do what is right and to speak the truth as we ought to speak it.

The great things that prayer has achieved have happened toward those who had made this supreme disposal of their lives according to God's will. There is no such thing as sincere prayer that bargains with God or that measures what happens according to human demand.

But when man brings his whole life under submission to the will of God, he understands that there is reality and power in prayer that the worldly minded can never understand, and that often God answers prayer most particularly in what seems to be the denial of outward petitions.

The one significant accomplishment of all true praying is in the words of Jesus, "Nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done."

Book Notes . . .

On March 28 M. R. Warner will have a new book-out. Robert McBride, his publisher, announces that this book, the title of which is "Privileged Characters" is the most ambitious he has yet tackled. He uncovers the shameful corruption of people and departments in our Government, the Tea Pot Dome scandal, the Goss and Air Mail contracts, the effort to make a killing out of the veterans' hospitals and supplies, and various other cases of graft and greed in high places.

It is possible that the people of Japan may rise against those now in control of the government, says Grover Clark in his forthcoming book on China—The Great Wall Crumbles. Taxes in Japan are staggeringly high; the farmers (60 per cent of the population), are in desperate straits; communism is getting a considerable hold, underground, and there is also a growing demand in certain groups for a Fascist regime.

Of the struggle between Japan and China, Mr. Clark says: "Though an aggressive Japan has been and still is a menace to China, though Japan for a time may be able not only to hold what she has taken, but to take more, this fundamental fact remains to tip the scales in China's favor sooner or later in the contest with Japan; China does not need Japan, but Japan cannot live without China."

Of the 62,000 people living in Charleston, 32,000 are negroes. In "Don't You Weep, Don't You Moan," Richard Coleman has written an extraordinary novel of the black Charleston. It is not a story about one community, one street, or one house; it is a vivid and exciting novel with scenes laid along the Charleston waterfront, in "Sacred Ground" below Broad Street, where the aristocratic old families live and maintain their negroes, in the city streets, and the sea islands where the swamps and plantations are.

The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures

ELIJAH FED BY THE RAVENS

Following the death by fire of Zimri the kingdom of Israel was divided and Omri prevailed against Tibni. He built the city of Samaria. He was a wicked ruler and his son, Ahab, who succeeded him, was even more wicked than his father, doing more to provoke the anger of the Lord against Israel than all the kings of Israel that were before him. "And Elijah, the Tishbite, who was of the inhabitants of Gilead, said unto Ahab, As the Lord God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand, there shall not be dew or rain these years, but according to my word. And the word of the Lord came unto him, saying, get thee hence, and turn thee eastward, and hide thyself by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan. And it shall be, that thou shalt drink of the brook; and I have commanded the ravens to feed thee there. So he went and did according unto the word of the Lord: for he went and dwelt by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan. And the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning and bread and flesh in the evening; and he drank of the brook."—I Kings 17: 1-6. THE TINYMITES

The giant soon heard Scouty shout. "The stage is finished. Test it out. Must make sure it won't fall down and let the actors drop. They're going to treat us to a show, and we must treat them right, you know. I'd hate to have it our fault, if the whole thing was a flop."

"Don't worry," said the giant. "I am going to step right up and try the thing you've built. If it holds me, it's sure to be okay."

They watched him as he walked around, and heard him say, "It's safe and sound. The floor you Tinymites have built, I'm sure, is here to stay."

Then the wee Hindu shouted. "Well, I'll run this show. It will be swell to tell the actors what to do. You Tinymites find a seat."

"I'll let the clever juggler start. The way he juggles is an art. Now, when he's through, applaud him so he'll know you liked his treat!"

"Okay!" wee Duncy cried. "Let's go. Off with a he talk. On with the show!" And then the juggler hopped upon the stage and started in.

To all the Tiny boys he said, "Please take your hats off of your head. I'm going to do a little trick that's bound to make you grin."

The lads all did as they were told, and then the juggler, brave and bold, cried, "Doty, bring them here to me. I'll shortly give them back."

"I'm going to toss them all around, and not a one will hit the back."

ONE WAY TO HELP ABOLISH WARS

Patrick J. Hurley, former secretary of war, in testifying before the senate munitions committee, emphasized some vital points in connection with the conscription of wealth and manpower during wartime. He strongly stressed the point that the right of the president and congress to require a citizen to bear arms was unquestionably a greater inroad upon the rights of the citizen than any possible move to take away the private property of a citizen, which is unquestionably true.

He also declared, in response to a question, that another war would not help the nation to solve the economic problems of the depression, which declaration is just the opposite of the view held by many people. It is true that there might be a boom as the result of war, such as took place in the World war, but the people of the present generation know full well the terrific cost in lives and property which war entails, and everyone knows it throws all business entirely out of equilibrium.

In connection with the testimony before this senate committee, we also noticed in the Legion's program, which is commonly known as the "universal draft," it included a suggestion of "freezing" prices at the beginning of the war, which, with other suggestions, is designed to "take the profit out of war."

The Register has emphasized, in the past, not only the necessity of eliminating profits from arms during wartime, but also of taking the profits out of the business of munitions making at all times.

We are for this program of the Legion thoroughly and heartily, but we wonder why they do not go further. They should insist that the taxpayers of the various countries should not be burdened with tremendous military expenditures during peace-time as well.

The disclosures before the Nye investigating committee have brought out the methods whereby the munitions makers stimulate business during peace-time, and thus make profits. They play one nation against another, sell munitions to both sides; borrow warships from the U. S. government to demonstrate their products to foreign countries, and promote war scares without end.

The goal of most of the American people is the abolition of war as a method of settling international disputes. So they are interested not in how to stop profits during the period of a war, but how to stop the war.

One good way to help stop the production of wars is to eliminate the profits of the munitions makers during peace-time.

Even though the American Legion has not yet emphasized that these terrible ungodly profits should be taken out of "blood" munitions, even during times when they are planning for war, as during so-called "peace" times, yet by emphasizing by taking profit out after war is declared, they are helping the general elimination of profits made by destructive forces.

THE PURPOSE OF EDUCATION

At the annual convention of the department of superintendence of the National Education association at Atlantic City held recently, the educators were concerned about two questions. The first was: "Should children be taught capitalism, collectiveness, or neither?" The second: "What should be done to preserve academic freedom?"

These questions had been studied by a commission of 11 members for two years, and no agreement could be reached either way on the first. And as to the second, no agreement could be arrived at as to what academic freedom really was.

All of which illustrates the state of flux in which opinion is among those to whom we look for instruction and guidance. To whom can we go for light on such questions if not to the educators? How can progress be made if the leaders stand baffled before situations or head in various directions?

We need not be disturbed by this failure of leaders to agree. They never have agreed in the past and it is unreasonable to expect that they will in the present or the future. "Every institution," said Emerson, "is the lengthened shadow of a man." The pioneer usually goes it alone. If he has followers, they contribute nothing but background to his ideas or to his adventurous designs.

It would be delightful and profitable if great bodies of experts could agree upon plans and purposes. But they never do and they never will.

Yet the world marches on, not in command of groups, but of individuals. Groups thrash out the straw in their councils and their debates. The individual gathers the wheat and serves it to the masses. It was ever thus.

HOW TIMES CHANGE

Occasionally, something comes up to show us how times change, how the standards of conduct of an earlier age give the laugh to a later and a more liberal age.

A rule in force in the college founded by Mary Lyon in 1837 illustrates that point. Mount Holyoke was one of the first institutions of the country to give girls the same chance at the higher education that boys were having. The rules to restrict the freedom of the girls of that period, and the character of the requirements for admission to the privileges of the institution would stir up a riot in a modern college.

This is one of the rules: "No young lady shall become a member of Mount Holyoke Seminary who cannot kindle a fire, wash potatoes, repeat the multiplication table and at least two-thirds of the shorter catechism. Every member of the school shall walk a mile a day, unless a freshet, earthquake or some other calamity prevent. No young lady shall devote more than an hour a day to miscellaneous reading. No young lady is expected to have gentlemen acquaintances unless they are returned missionaries or agents of benevolent societies."

Yet, despite all these restrictions, these young ladies, if the reports of that age are true, had a pretty good time. They loved, they married, and they brought up children; and the simpler pleasures of that day probably had as much of a "kick" in them as many of our wilder kind.

It is well to learn that each generation becomes the butt and the laughter of succeeding generations. To that the age of the 1930's will be no exception. Some may live long enough to see that day.

THE PRESIDENT'S AIMS

Amid all the controversy about the alphabetic administrations of the New Deal—their failures or their successes, — one leader of opinion has pointed out the primary purposes in the mind of the president. It is well that these purposes should be in the minds of all the people.

They are these: that the mass shall not be despoiled by the few; that labor shall have a greater share in industry; that the remainder of the rewards shall not be concentrated as before; that children shall not lose their childhood in toil, and workers shall have a living wage and greater leisure; that those growing old shall have security and no one shall go unhousehold or unfed.

These are noble aims and purposes. No doubt there have been blunders and frustrations.

Vested interests, traditional prejudices and self-seeking individuals have thrown up barricades against the high aims and purposes sought, as they always have done.

But as Carlyle says about Cromwell, "What are faults, what are the outer details of a life, if the inner secret of it, the remorse, temptations, true and often baffled and never-ending struggle of it be forgotten."

Many in the past have fallen, failed and been greatly censured. Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt the elder, are cases to be cited. But history has crowned them.

It will be so with any purposes which aim high. Once stated and started, some one will come to carry on.

JUSTICE HOLMES' BEQUEST TO THE GOVERNMENT

The will of Justice Holmes was characteristic of the man. Remembering with gifts those who had a claim upon him by reason of relationship or service, he gave the bulk of the estate that remained to the government which, in war and peace, he had served with signal distinction and which had required his service for it by the privileges given only to a few.

To him the privilege of serving the government was a high honor. That privilege he wanted to repay with high and devoted service while living, and his faith in his government by leaving to it his money in death.

To those who might say, his money should have been given to some high private endowment, the reply might have been made that he had seen too many private endowments dissipated by selfish or stupid trustees.

In giving his money to the government, he may have implied that we owe everything to our government, and to inspire confidence in it by all the people he was performing a higher service to the public. As Will Rogers remarked, it is a good lesson for those who are always trying to "do" the government.

Individualism For Colleges

Christian Science Monitor

An alert and intelligent attitude in facing educational problems, and a willingness to recognize weaknesses and set about reforming them, is the keynote of the twenty-ninth annual report of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

The report will probably be received with differing emotions by the more than 800 colleges and universities of the United States, but to all it offers words of counsel and sound wisdom. The stronger and more progressive will welcome the promise of a greater flexibility and agree wholeheartedly that it is time for such mechanized standards as the Carnegie "unit" and courses, points and hours as measuring rods, to yield a more basically intelligent method of judging student progress. Such aids, Dr. Walter A. Jessup, president of the foundation, points out, no doubt had their value at a time when a major aim was the raising and enforcing of a general standard, but their day is passing.

This pronouncement as to increased flexibility will be warmly indorsed by the more liberal educator in both school and college, for he has long recognized the lifelessness of such standards, and their evident tendency to deaden that intellectual discussion, vigorous approach to, and eager discussion of problems which are characteristics of the true student.

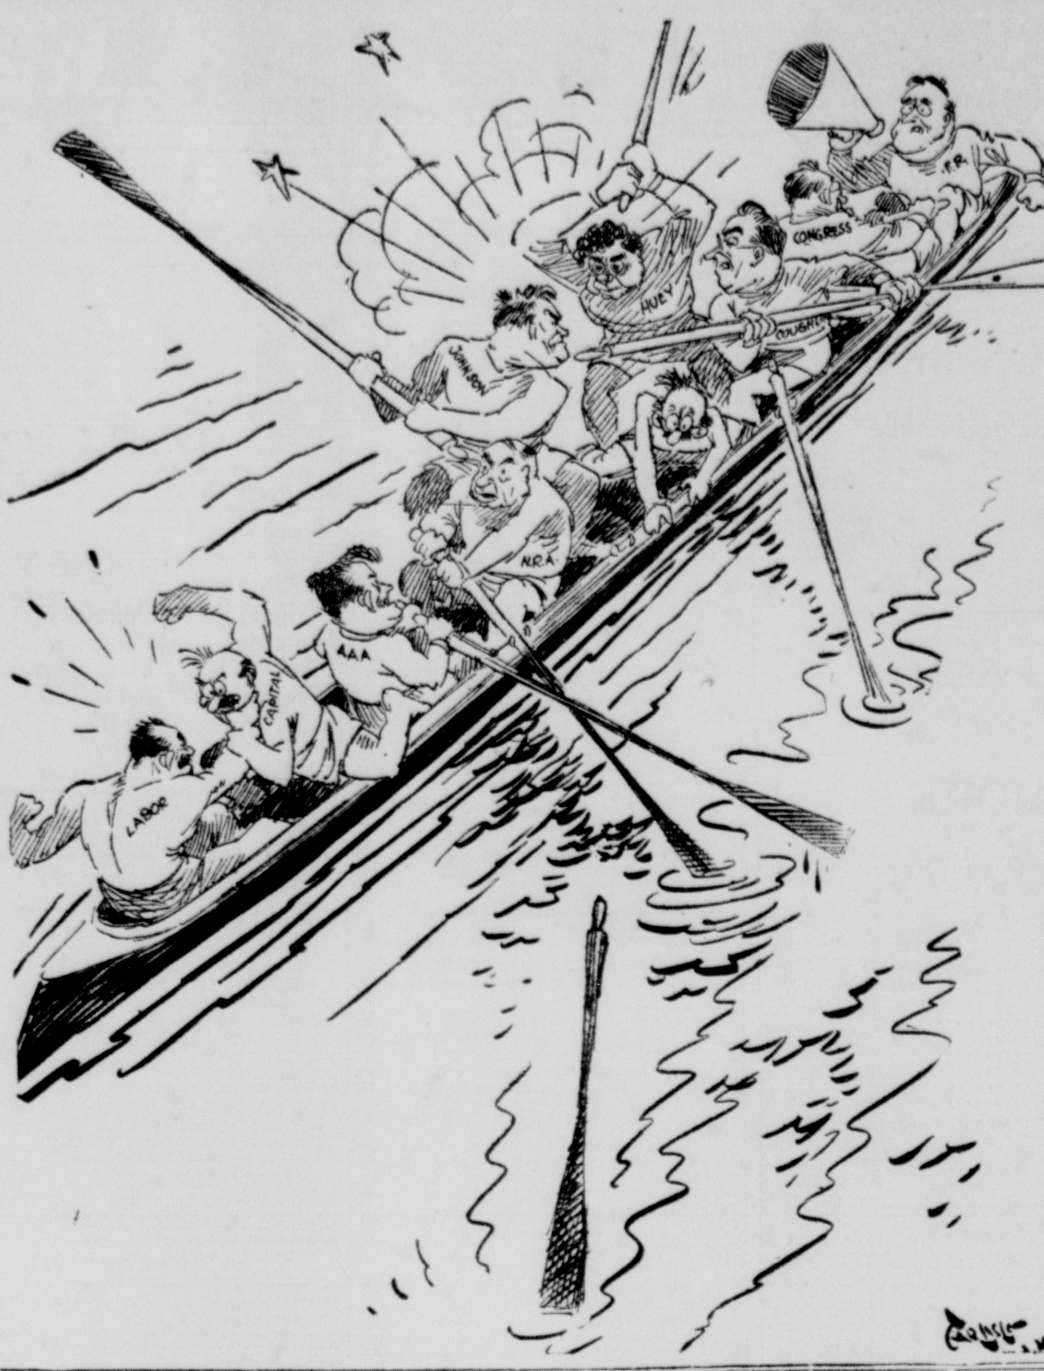

To colleges which have tended to over-specialization, Dr. Jessup offers wise advice along the lines of simplification and co-operation:

Colleges do not need elaborate "survey" so much as they need to analyze with sincerity their own resources in order to discover their limitations and strengths. Such an analysis will call for a clear definition of function; it may even suggest and point the way to widespread co-operation among institutions.

On the question of simplification he adds: "Many of the most distinguished institutions are leading the way by consolidating or eliminating departments and by the transfer of students."

Dr. Jessup admits frankly that "some institutions, bearing the name of college, have so little to offer that they should disband." But he heartens those smaller colleges which are doing sincere and efficient work in their own field by reminding them that many leaders of today received their initial training in quite modest colleges, as judged by modern standards.

More Truth Than Poetry

WATER GARDEN

I'd like to have a garden,
An under-water garden,
In which my plants
Would fear no ants
Or any insect pest.
The birds their food would bring there
And sit about and sing there;
The place to me
Would always be
A spot of peace and rest.

I've often planted bowers
Of lovely garden flowers,
But always slugs
And kindred bugs
Would blight them in their bloom.
And there would come a morning
When they, without a warning,
Would droop and die
Beneath the sky
And lose their soft perfume.

Some day I'll plant that garden,
That placid water garden,
Where tiny fish
Will rise and swim
Their gleaming silver tails,
About the pool they'll wander,
Here, there and over yonder,
Pause, swerve and start,
And dive and dart,
And think that they are whales.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLEN FRANK

FAREWELL TO TOLERANCE

The western world seems set to say farewell to tolerance and all the more gracious fruits of liberty that ripened in the nineteenth century under the liberal tradition.

The fight then was between conservatism and liberalism, using these two terms not quite accurately to suggest the liberal fight for social welfare against the conservative defense of special privilege.

Today the fight everywhere is between Liberalism and Radicalism.

If Liberalism had not won its fight for tolerance Radicalism would not have been able to gain a foothold to make its latter-day fight.

Until now Tyranny has served at the altar of Special Privilege. Tolerance was pitted against Tyranny in order to give the submerg-ed a chance to speak their minds and voice grievance. The masses threw their hats in the air at every conquest of Tyranny. Liberty meant emancipation for them.

Today Radicalism steals the ancient technique of Special Privilege and makes of Tyranny its major weapon.

Faith in reason fades. The Cult of Force gains recruits daily.

Nations we have long thought civilized adopt methods of government which less than a quarter of a century ago would have been denounced by their own people as smacking of despotism and tyranny intolerable to modern men.

The age of iron seems upon us. The world around there is chance for martyrdom and maybe triumphs in the fight to keep mankind from saying farewell to tolerance.

FREEING CHILDREN

If we can manage to find an outlet for the suppressed longings of fears or hopes of children we can set them free of a great burden and send them on their way rejoicing all the days of their lives. Sometimes we hit on the very thing needed, and again we mess along for years trying one scheme and another in vain.

Children cannot help us find the secret when it is deeply buried in the mind. Often they are as unconscious of the cause of their difficulty as we are. They know they are unhappy, they want to get away from the routine they follow daily, but they cannot say what it is they are searching for. They are cross, unsocial, disobedient, complaining, often ill. They are failing because they are carrying an intolerable burden of some sort and are unable to help themselves or to show us how to help them.

Such children are beset by fears, or they want to do something that they are prevented from doing, or they want to be another sort of person than they are obliged to be. The unrest shows in their behavior. We try to cure it by discipline, health routines, programs for this and for that and we fail oftener than we succeed.

Not until we find an opening for the suppressed idea can we free the struggling children.

There are many ways of expression but each child can use but the one that is peculiarly his. Maybe he can lose himself in music, or in wood carving, finger painting, modeling, story writing. Nobody knows the way of a child, not even the child himself, until he finds it.

It is interesting to read Ruth Shaw's book, "Finger Printing," and learn how troubled children freed themselves of fear and grief through the use of this pudgy paint; how they released the tension in their minds and bodies by making finger drawn patterns on the paper—patterns whose color and form expressed something the child had been longing to say for months, perhaps years. Once said to the full, the pressure was lifted and the child was free.

Turn then to Emma Sheridan Frye's little book on Dramatic expression and learn there how she helped children free themselves of these troublesome pressures through the dramatic plays she offered them. The burdened child went straight to the role that best expressed his inner feeling, plunged head foremost into it and came out a new, a happier, healthier child.

And if you talked to a teacher bookbinder named Bell, he would tell you of hardened young ruffians who were sent to his class because nobody else would have them, and who, after learning to bind a book, became the happiest, healthiest, most cooperative young citizens.

Some day every school in the world will plan to offer such freedom to the children in its care. Until then let us hope that the Shaws and the Fries and the Bells will increase and multiply that they may work their miracles among suffering children.

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.)
